Two Men Killed By Automobiles; 3 Students Hurt

F. P. Huckins, Appleton,
Fatally Injured on Wisconsin-ave

INQUEST TODAY

Body of Frank Ben Porter
Found Along Highway
Near Marion

Two persons were killed, three were injured, and one was saved from drowning in accidents in Appleton and vicinity yesterday and this morning.

The dead: F. P. Huckins, 62, 838 E. Washington, Appleton, killed by an automobile driven by Charles Schmidt, 1212 E. Opechuck, was instantly killed. A coroner's inquest was called at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the city hall.

The injured: Arthur Demerise, Esther Schmidt and Rosetta Brandt, all of Black Creek. They were injured when a car in which they were riding collided with a wagon on Highway 47.

The near drowning victim was Miss Lola Cahoe, Kaukauna, who was rescued from the power canal at Kaukauna.

Huckins, a state representative for a boiler insurance company, was crossing E. Wisconsin-ave from the north to the south side of the street about 6:20 last night near the intersection with N. Lawrence-st. when the Schmidt car, going east on Wisconsin-ave, struck him and carried him about 100 feet before it was stopped, according to police.

Dies Instantly
Huckins died instantly, it is believed. He was badly bruised and one leg was fractured in several places.

The radiator of the Schmidt car and hood were badly damaged. Stanley Stahl, district attorney, was called to the scene of the crash. A coroner's inquest was called for this afternoon at the city hall. Members of the jury are Henry Lauer, Frank Neuman, Earl Lutz, Louis Jens, Peter Van Oudenhoven and E. L. Williams.

Huckins is survived by his widow. He was a member of the Masonic lodge, No. 100, of the city. The body will be viewed at the funeral home from Sunday noon to the time of the funeral at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon.

Kind Dead Man
A man identified as Frank Ben Porter, about 60, was found dead in the ditch along highway 26 just south of Marion early Thursday morning by C. McKay of the C. C. Rasy farm. He had been struck by a motor vehicle, believed to be a truck, Wednesday evening, and is thought to have died instantly. The driver of the machine is not known.

The dead man is believed to be the same Frank Porter who was an inmate of the county poor farm near Manawa last winter, but who left there early this spring. Sheriff Arthur Steenbock of Waupaca-co is investigating. A coroner's jury was empaneled at Marion Thursday, but the inquest was postponed until Monday, Nov. 28.

Rules Committee Head Hoping for Dry Law Change

Pou Favors Action for Modification During
Short Session

Washington — (P) — Chairman Pou of the house rules committee today expressed to newspapermen the "hope that we can get modification of the Volstead act behind us at the short session."

As head of the powerful committee which has so much to say as to what the house will act on, the North Carolina Democrat is in a strategic position in the house.

To newspapermen, he said, he "realized the difficulty of getting important measures through congress during a short session," and added:

"I will be glad to cooperate in carrying out the pledges of the Democratic platform."

Pou, the Democratic dean of the house, voted against the 18th amendment and the Volstead act, although he was an advocate of prohibition in North Carolina.

In voting to sustain President Wilson's veto of the Volstead act, he said in the house that the state was the largest political unit that could enforce prohibition.

He asserted then that the federal government would fail "to enforce prohibition and today said 'I feel as if my prediction has come true.'"

Senator Harrison (D, Miss.) told newspapermen he felt beer and light wines should be legalized at the next session if the treasury could not obtain needed revenue elsewhere.

"If the treasury deficit continues to mount I see no reason why beer should not be legalized," he said.

Harrison predicted there would be sufficient votes to pass a beer bill over a presidential veto. He said he did not know what action President Hoover would take on such a measure.

Suspect Arrested in Green Bay Robbery

Chicago — (P) — Thomas D. Potter, 34, was turned over to Sheriff J. D. Coleman of Brown-co, Wis., today for questioning about the robbery of his brother-in-law, Frank Swantek, near Green Bay, Wis.

The Swantek farm, was raided Oct. 11 by four men who tortured Swantek, his wife, Elizabeth, and two children until they revealed the hiding place of $80. Sheriff Coleman wanted to ask Potter whether he drove the robbers' car.

Potter was arrested at his home here last night and waived extradition, denying any part in the crime.

Pays for Cremation
And Then Kills Self

New York — (P) — Harry W. Holly, Brooklyn manufacturer, appeared at the United States Crematory in Queens, arranged for his cremation after death and paid the $35 fee. Then he retired to a men's room and killed himself with a bullet through the head. The body was found yesterday, but no motive was announced.

Washington — (P) — Relief for the needy in three states today was granted by the Reconstruction corporation, Arkansas getting $287,663, Indiana $85,000 and Missouri $7,900. The corporation also reaffirmed its decision in loaning Puerto Rico $360,000 for relief, Indiana hitherto has received $497,200 and Missouri $1,006,788.

Hitler Ready To Air Nazi's Plans in Reich

Prepares for Private Audience Tomorrow With Von Hindenburg

HOPE FOR SOLUTION

Party Newspaper Thinks
Leader May Be Head
Of New Cabinet

Berlin — (P) — Adolf Hitler came to Berlin today prepared to meet President von Hindenburg in a private audience tomorrow and to lay before him the program of the powerful National Socialist party for dealing with the stalemate in the Reichstag.

The Hitlerite organ, the Volkischer Beobachter of Munich, remarked in connection with the Nazi chieftain's trip to Berlin that it was not asking too much to expect the powers of the nation "to harken to the masses" and entrust Hitler with the formation of the new cabinet.

Commenting on the resignation yesterday of Chancellor Franz von Papen, the Nazi organ said that "his chancellorship has proved that the time of experiments and half-way measures is over."

Herr Hitler, whose party is the most powerful in a Reichstag in which no party or group is able to swing a majority, arrived in Berlin after President von Hindenburg had personally taken over the task of negotiating with party leaders in an attempt to resolve the Reichstag deadlock.

The president discussed the situation separately with the leaders of the Nationalist, Centrist and German People's party, but the result of those conferences was not made public, each leader being sworn to secrecy.

Up to Hindenburg
The full weight of Germany's domestic crisis fell upon the aged President von Hindenburg today as he set out grimly to attain his cherished ideal of a national concentration government tolerated, at least, by the deadlocked Reichstag.

The president started alone on the difficult road he has charted for himself as a result of the resignation of the Junker cabinet of Von Papen. That government stepped aside yesterday after two elections had failed to give it a working hold on the Reichstag.

Only the president's secretary was called to accompany the president at conferences with various party leaders.

Selected for these talks today were Alfred Hugenberg, the Nationalist Party leader, Eduard Dingeldey, the German People's (Populist) party chief, and Dr. Ludwig Kaas, acting for the Catholic Centrist party.

Woman Confesses She
Poisoned Farm Family

Caro, Mich. — (P) — Miss Grace Hossler, 34, admitted today, sheriff's officials said, that she poisoned her brother, sister, brother-in-law and a hired man on the brother's farm home near here "because they ridiculed me."

The brother, Oscar Hossler, and Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Hossler, brother-in-law and sister, became violently ill after eating food prepared by Miss Hossler, but are recovering in a hospital. The hired man was not seriously affected. Pending a sanity hearing, she was placed in the county jail.

Woman Loses $29,000
Suit Against Ex-Boss

Green Bay — (P) — Helen Heisdorf, 30, De Pere, whose suit for $29,000 damages against her former employer, Joseph Moore, wealthy insurance man, was one of the most sensational in Brown-co court annals, was denied a judgement in a verdict reached last night by a circuit court jury of 12 men.

3 Resolutions Before
Convention of Grange

Winston-Salem, N. C. — (P) — Three resolutions, one urging prohibition of the use of cotton, one opposing any change in the present system of delivering rural mail and another opposing compulsory crop reduction legislation were introduced today at the annual convention of the National Grange.

The resolutions were referred to a committee for consideration before being placed before the Grange for argument and vote.

Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd will address an open meeting of the Grange tonight.

The seventh degree, one of the most colorful fraternal orders of the Grange, was conferred today on 2,100 members.

A resolution urging promotion of the use of cotton was introduced by the South Carolina delegation. It suggested that cotton replace jute in bags for fertilizer, feed and other commodities.

Woman Tells of Fatal Shooting

Declares Husband Killed
While They Were Struggling for Gun

Beaver City, Neb. — (P) — For the first time since the shooting of her husband last May, Mrs. Marguerite Moore, on trial for murder, told the public today the story of the slaying. Then the defense rested its case.

The 23-year-old Arapahoe woman testified she and Guy Moore, 34, had quarreled over his attentions to Mrs. Lambert a friend of theirs. They started for a drive the evening of May 23 and he insisted on taking a gun along and stopping at the Lambert home.

He struck her between the eyes, she asserted when she refused to stop. On coming to her senses she found him still striking and kicking her. Then they drove back to their filling station in Arapahoe and he pushed her out of the car and reached for the gun.

She grabbed it also, she said, and got it by the stock while Moore held on by the barrel and she fired.

In pulling for possession of the gun, she testified one of her fingers snagged the unguarded trigger and the gun discharged.

Another defense witness, Dr. J. Willis, said Mrs. Moore was in a state of forgetfulness at the time of the shooting because of brain concussion and that she might have pulled the trigger without knowing or remembering it.

Higher Price to be Paid in Future in Raids by Slavers

Washington — (P) — Slave raiding by Abyssinians in British Africa will come higher in the future—the minimum fixed at 20 head of cattle per person stolen instead of 15 as in the past.

The payment of 15 is expected to be required for each man, woman or child killed or enslaved in a recent raid in the British Kenya colony.

But a recent agreement between delegates of the Abyssinian and Sudan governments, growing out of raids into Anglo-Egyptian Sudan in March, put the future "blood money" at a 20-head minimum, the acceptable price of African tribesmen for a highly desirable young wife.

More serious than the fines, however, is the possibility that the slavery committee of the league of nations may take action against Abyssinia because of the evidence offered by these slave raids, which persist despite the country's pledge upon entering the league of nations in 1923 that it would abolish slavery throughout its domain, about seven times the size of New York state.

Singler Seeking
Wider Support
For Milk Strike

Pool Head in Milwaukee
Trying to Obtain State-Wide Backing

Milwaukee — (P) — With closer affiliation of Wisconsin farm organizations as the first objective, Walter Singler, Shiotoon, president of the Wisconsin Cooperative Milk Pool association, came to Milwaukee yesterday to solicit support of a statewide milk strike.

Accompanied by A. C. Christman, Menomonee Falls dairyman, Singler, a colorful figure in his large Texas hat, flannel shirt and red blazer, outlined his plans in conferences with labor leaders and influential dairymen. He talked higher farm prices everywhere he went.

Singler admitted there is still great need for organization among farmers, but said he had received assurances at the convention of the Farmers Union in Omaha, Neb., this week that the Wisconsin branch of the union, the milk pool, which he heads will work together.

The farm leader said that should the farmers be denied the 5-cent increase in butterfat prices, demanded at the milk pool conference at Appleton on threat of a strike Dec. 1, the strike would probably not get under way until later because of the need for more general support.

Threat Forestalled Cut
If the strike is called, he said, its objective will be much more than a 5-cent price increase. He said the mere threat of a strike forestalled a cut in butterfat prices scheduled to go into effect this week.

"Every leader of farm organizations in this state will be with us, or if they don't go along, I feel sorry for them," he said.

"If we don't get the 5-cent increase by Dec. 1, then we will complete our plans to strike. Five cents too small, however, and is only a beginning. We plan to start off with milk, but our operations will not necessarily be limited to this one product."

Farmers at the Omaha conference indicated, Singler said, they are determined to get what they want this year from congress in the way of helpful legislation.

Fond du Lac — (P) — William Schmitz, on parole from a one to three year sentence, and two other men whose names were not revealed were held at the county jail here today in connection with a holdup Sept. 10 at Nick's Place, a soft drink parlor. Schmitz pleaded not guilty to a charge of robbery while armed and with threatening to kill.

30 Years, Die Together

Toronto, Ont. — (P) — Death, stealing upon them from a world they shut out for 30 years, has struck down the Misses Emma and Amelia Richardson, spinster sisters for whom time stopped at the year 1902.

In an old house which they had made a hermitage of Victorianism in a bewildering world of modernity, the sisters, 76 and 73 years old, were found dead yesterday, clad in the bustles and ruffles of a vanished day.

Today authorities decided that it was gas, one of the few conveniences in the quaint house, that caused their death. A partly opened burner on the kitchen range and the positions of the frail bodies told the story.

Daring British Woman
Flier Cheered Upon Arrival at Cape Town

Cape Town, Union of South Africa — (P) — Amy Johnson, flying alone from England, landed here at 1:30 p. m. Greenwich time (8:30 a. m. E. S. T.) today, clipping nearly 11 hours off the speed record held by her husband, J. A. Mollison.

Last March Captain Mollison made the trip in 4 days 17 hours and 19 minutes. His wife's time was 4 days, 6 hours and 55 minutes, or 10 hours and 24 minutes faster than his.

She brought her small monoplane, "Desert Cloud" down to a skillful landing to the accompaniment of shrieking motor horns and the cheers of 2,000 persons waiting to greet her. The crowd gave the police some trouble as it rushed to surround the flier.

Miss Johnson covered the 6,250 miles from England with only four stops. The first was at Oran in Algeria, whence she flew 1,500 miles across the Sahara desert to Gao in Portuguese West Africa. Then she followed the coastline to Benguela, landed there and at Mossamedes, her last stop before reaching here.

She was very tired. When Mollison made the flight the strain was so great that he cracked up at the finish. He explained later that he had had so little sleep during the flight that in the last landing he misjudged his distance. He was not hurt and the plane was not badly damaged.

Over 5 Million in Default
But Ultimate Loss
Will be Small

Madison — (P) — The state annuity board revealed in a report to Gov. Philip L. LaFollette today that of a grand total of $25,720,088 in investments held by the board, $5,491,253 is in default at the present time.

Of the securities which are in default $5,436,755 is in farm mortgages, $993,000 in real estate mortgages, $54,500 in other mortgages, $80,000 in railroad bonds and $52,500 in municipal bonds.

"It does not follow that undue loss will result because mortgages or bonds are at present in default," the board said in a letter to the governor. "With the return of normal conditions the probable losses from possessed farms and farm mortgages should be very greatly reduced, and many defaults will be entirely cured. The municipal bonds in default originate in states with a 5 per cent debt limit, are retireable out of taxes and will finally be paid. Nor does it follow that a loss will be sustained because at present the market value of bonds is abnormal. We purchase bonds for investment and are primarily concerned with their safety as we ordinarily expect to hold them until maturity, when par should be realized."

Hoover Preparing for Conference on Debts, Other Federal Issues

OPPOSES DEBT CANCELLATION

Washington — (P) — The drive for a change in federal liquor laws gained impetus today from an announcement by Senator Vandenberg, Michigan Republican, that he favors immediate submission of a prohibition repeal amendment and liberalization of the Volstead law.

McCook, Neb. — (P) — United States Senator W. Norris today said he was opposed to any form of cancellation of the war debts and that he did not seek or want a cabinet position. He stated his views in an interview as he started to Washington for the "lame duck" session of congress.

"The settlement already made giving the foreign powers one-half reduction went entirely too far in my estimation," Norris said. "I do not favor a moratorium. There isn't anything for us to do if they want to repudiate their war debts."

Norris said the European debts to the United States remained the paramount item of national interest today with more than $30,000,000 due Dec. 15 and England, France and Belgium already objecting and seeking a conference for possible readjustment of sums due this country.

The Nebraska insurgent Republican senator who campaigned for President-elect Roosevelt, said he resented attempts to anticipate the cabinet appointments of the president-elect. "All conjecture," he said when asked about the possibility of him serving on the cabinet. He added that he neither asked nor desired a place.

Pleased with the Roosevelt victory, Norris today reiterated his warning voiced shortly after the election that dangers lie in the showing nature of the Democratic triumph.

"History shows," Norris said, "that this often brings recklessness and abuse in its wake."

Honduran Rebels Hold
Key City Near Capital

Tegucigalpa, Honduras — (P) — The main body of a rebel "liberal" army was reported today to be holding the key city to South Honduras, Nacaome, 60 miles from the capital.

The rebel movement was the clearest growth of the recent presidential election when the conservative candidate, Tiburcio Carias Andino, was declared elected over the liberal contender.

A cabinet meeting yesterday discussed a unified plan of action in the emergency, which sprang up suddenly Monday.

(Delayed dispatches from Honduras received in New York last night said the rebels had also captured Espire, 50 miles southwest of Tegucigalpa.)

Waltonites Hear Plan
For Conservation Area

Sheboygan — (P) — Reclamation for conservation purposes of what he termed the "central desert," an area of more than 300,000 acres in Adams, Juneau and Wood-cos, was urged by Wallace B. Grange, of the federal biological survey, in an address before the State League of Walton league convention yesterday.

Mr. Grange said the land is unfit for agricultural purposes, although millions of dollars have been spent in digging 850 miles of drainage ditches. He suggested that it be developed by construction of numerous dams to hold back the water.

The 150 delegates heard other conservation problems and were told that Wisconsin needs a resident fishing law and more game refuges.

Disseal Attempt to Assassinate Von Papen

Berlin — (P) — An attempt on the life of Chancellor von Papen on Tuesday was disclosed today when Mrs. Paula Budde was sentenced by a special court to three months imprisonment for carrying a dagger.

She was arrested in the chancellery on Tuesday when she sought an interview with Colonel von Papen. The chancellor's secretary became suspicious and telephoned the police who said they found a dagger a foot long concealed in her dress.

The woman's husband testified that she had told him she wanted to give the chancellor a memorandum in the hope that he would change his political policies. News of the arrest was suppressed at the time.

$5,000 Reported

Campaign Workers Hold
First Meeting Last Night at Y. M. C. A.

Workers in the Appleton Relief and Welfare Council drive last night submitted their first reports showing a trifle less than $5,000 for their first two days' efforts. However, the report was from only a part of the workers in six of the nine divisions, it was said. The goal is $25,000.

The exact figures reported last night were $4,950 but with money turned in later in the evening and early this morning the total went slightly over $5,000.

"That is just the preliminary work," Gustav J. Keller, Sr., chairman of the finance committee, said. "The merchants haven't had a chance to get started on their drive only one manufacturer has reported and it will take another few days before we will begin to notice a definite trend."

"Workers so far have been enthusiastic about the reception they have received, and instances where they have been turned down are rare. We have every reason to believe that the next reports will be more gratifying."

The next report meeting has been set for 7:30 Monday evening at the Y. M. C. A., when reports are expected from all divisions in the drive. Last night's report showed partial returns for the schools, the high school alone reporting $1,000.

Offers Plan To Solve War Debts Puzzle

Expert Would Re-Invest Funds Due in Securities of Debtors

Urbana, Ill. (AP)—A proposed solution of the nation's foreign debt problem—by a plan he contends would be not only practical but eventually profitable for the United States—was outlined today by Prof. Ivan Wright of the department of economics at the University of Illinois.

Instead of cancellation or repudiation, or continued accumulation of inter-allied debts, Dr. Wright suggests a "financial solution" based on re-investment of the principal and interest of the debts in private and public securities of the debtor countries.

This form of adjustment, he believes, would relieve the world's money market, permit debtors to stabilize their currencies and permit them again to engage in something approaching normal trade with the United States.

"Such a plan of re-investment," said Dr. Wright, a nationally known authority on finance, "would do more than protect the United States against cancellation or repudiation. It would save the American taxpayer not only the amount of these debts, but he would stand a chance of getting more than the amount of the debts."

"The losses which the United States has sustained already as a result of the debacle of world currencies in more than 40 countries has exceeded the debts these countries owe us."

Why not authorize the United States treasury, Dr. Wright asks, to invest the principal of these debts—and such part of the interest as may seem wise—in securities, stocks and bonds of debtor countries as these debts fall due from year to year.

Could Resell Later

"Then when the market becomes satisfactory," he explains, "the treasury at its discretion could resell these securities to American and foreign investors through American investment banks."

By this means we could increase foreign investments of the United States and the treasury would receive payment of its foreign loans with which to pay off the Liberty bonds.

"Bankers who tell us we should cancel the debts also tell us the great need of this country, to maintain foreign markets for our products, is to increase our foreign investments."

"There is no question about the ability of France and England to raise two or three hundred million dollars a year, principal and interest due the United States, and deposit these funds in banks in France and England."

"The difficulty is in transferring these funds into dollars. If these funds were invested in securities of these countries, there would, of course remain no transfer problem except that of dividends and coupons."

There are three other possible solutions to the debt tangle, Dr. Wright says: (1) Cancellation, (2) reduction of American tariffs and acceptance of foreign goods in payment, or (3) inflation of currency until gold will flow abroad and Americans can buy foreign goods abroad in spite of the tariffs.

"All three," he contends, "are destructive."

grocery in the days when Toronto was known as Muddy York, they lived with their mother, another sister, and a brother into the old house.

One of the sisters married, and the mother, it was said, disinherited her. Miss Amelia, and Miss Emma "knew their duty" better. They stayed at home. After a year or two their mother died and then the brother. The death of the latter was a blow from which Miss Emma's mind never recovered. Wants State Control Of Public Utilities

Hot Springs, Ark.—Delegation of public utilities regulation to state commissions free of political slants rather than the Interstate Commerce commission is advocated by James A. Perry, chairman of the Georgia Public Service commission.

His views were pressed in a paper he prepared, to be read today at the convention of the National Association of Railroad and Public Utilities Commissioners.

He said: "I make bold the assertion that if states had provided proper regulation both as to rates and service for the railroads and with such uniformity as is entirely possible, we would have had no need for federal regulation. I reach this conclusion because as one must admit, state commissions are in a much better position, indeed much better qualified, than any central body at Washington or elsewhere in dealing with the subject of rates for railroads."

Mr. Perry said federal control will never successfully handle the question.

though she would have to quit. She adjusted the feed line, however, and lost only a little time.

It is a dangerous flight down the whole length of Africa, with stretches of jungle where a forced landing might be fatal. Miss Johnson had weather trouble too, for along a 1,000 mile stretch there was a tremendous rain which made it impossible for her to see much more than the line of breakers marking the coast. She flew along along that line, occasionally pulling up sharply to get over the cliffs that appeared suddenly through the rain and fog.

When Mollison came down here nearly eight months ago Miss Johnson was one of those who welcomed her.

"I think you're wonderful," she told him then, and four months later they were married. Two months after that Mollison made the first solo flight from east to west across the north Atlantic.

Amy was heavy-eyed, but otherwise surprisingly fresh when she stepped out of the plane today.

"Thank you very much for this great welcome," she said, "I said I would come back and here I am."

She posed for the photographers as the mayor and his wife and the rest of the official reception committee led her away to an automobile.

They whisked her off to an office on the other side of the field and as she left the car the young woman collapsed for just a moment, burying her head in her arms. She recovered quickly and went on inside, remaining in the office for an hour before starting to the home of a friend where she will stay while here.

MOLLISON DELIGHTED

London.—Captain J. A. Mollison, who never thrilled much to his own achievements in the air, was excited today when he learned that his wife, Amy Johnson, had beaten his own record for the flight to Cape Town.

"I'm so proud that she has done it," he said, "but I knew she would. Perhaps the world thought she never could repeat her great flight to Australia, but this shows she has the stuff in her. This is wonderful. For a man it would be fine, but for a woman it is splendid."

He hurried off then to put in a telephone call to Cape Town.

BY WALTER LIPPMANN

A New Deal in New York City

Now at last the people of New York City have a fighting chance to obtain decent government. Until Wednesday night they could complain, they could argue, they could plead. They could not really do anything. For there was no one around whom they could organize. There was nobody able and willing to lead them. Their protests and their hopes were aimless, and did little more than to make slightly uncomfortable the less thick-skinned members of the Tammany power. But on Wednesday night Acting Mayor McKee issued his call for an organization to combat the existing organization, and by that act produced the indispensable instrument or reform.

That instrument is a man—honest, competent and popular—who can organize the politicians and rally the voters. The ideal man would have been Alfred E. Smith. He is not available. Joseph V. McKee will do admirably well. There is no need to look further. In fact, it would be foolish to look further, and since there is no time to lose, since the work of organizing for battle will require undivided attention and effort, all other reform candidates for Mayor in 1933 should be looked upon with suspicion. Intentionally or otherwise, they can have no other effect but to divide and paralyze the reform movement. If the people of New York City want a better government they will unite without further hesitation upon McKee for Mayor at the next election.

Mr. McKee is in a good position to take the leadership. He is a Democrat in good standing, in fact he is a Democrat in very specially good standing. For he belongs to that part of the Democratic organization known as the Bronx Democracy, which is most closely affiliated with the Governor and the President-elect. He is, thus, more than a good man. He represents a power which the politicians are bound to respect and in the end to make terms with. He can organize a reform movement in terms of practical politics.

No one else is so well able to do this. There are admirable men in Tammany, but none of them, they could lead the people can depend upon to break away from the loyalties and personal entanglements of this ancient caste. A new leadership must come from the outside, from a man who can fight Tammany without being charged with treachery to his friends.

New leadership certainly cannot come from the local Republican organization. For that machine, as now controlled as it is by Tammany, and more contemptible, in the recent campaign it fell to such depths of servility and impotence that it was afraid to attack Tammany. Nothing can be done with the local Republican organization until the young Republicans seize it, turn out the bosses who betray them, and make it a party with which an independent voter might with some self-respect affiliate himself.

It is equally clear that no results can be achieved through the Socialist party. Mr. Thomas and Mr. Hillquit are able and attractive men, and if they would run for and get themselves elected to legislative offices they could make a very real contribution to public policy. But the people will not now trust them with executive power, and all that running for Mayor next year is to make it easier for Tammany to keep its grip on the city.

There it, among the people of New York, a sense of discouragement about the city government so profound that it is close to hopelessness. There is a feeling that Tammany government as we have known it under Mayor Hylan and Mayor Walker, and as we shall know it under Mr. O'Brien, is fundamentally the kind of government the people want. Although it is extravagant, inefficient, and very corrupt, it has a hold upon the people through a wide distribution of privileges and favors. There is no doubt about the effectiveness of the system, it is built upon the principle of letting so many voters share in the law breaking, the pull, the inside tips, the contract and real estate speculation, the tax muddle and what not, that rebels are bought and never live in a really well governed city, and men who are comfortable for those who enjoy its favor and very uncomfortable for those who challenge its power.

This system of government by fear and favor persists chiefly because the great mass of the people have never known what good government is like. They have no standards with which to measure the Tammany system. They have never lived in a really well governed city, and men who are comfortable for those who enjoy its favor and very uncomfortable for those who challenge its power.

It is only by a demonstration of what good government can do that the people will come to care for it. They need to be shown what efficient, honest, progressive men could do with the resources of a city like New York to make it a live city. For where a great population is closely congested a far reaching development of municipal collectivism is inevitable and necessary. It is in the great city that planning and the socialization of services must supplant competitive, acquisitive individualism and the chaos of laissez-faire. No decent life is possible for the masses of a great city who are subject to the special interests of the few.

But with the kind of government Tammany provides planning and the administration of social services are impossible. Think of a man like O'Brien, the Mayor-elect. Think of a man like John F. Curry. Think of the largest city on this continent at one of the great crises of modern history, in the hands of men like that. It is not merely that they waste money. They waste our lives. They condemn us to discomfort, to meanness, to squalor, when an able and honest government could remove. They monopolize the power which in the hands of trustworthy and imaginative men could be used to make a city that was convenient, comfortable and inspiring to live in. Once the people see a government they can trust with power, the real work of municipal reform, which is much more than a matter of taxes and credit, can begin. It cannot begin sooner.

The moment has arrived for a new deal in New York City. The Tammany machine has brought the city to the edge of bankruptcy and has driven prices lower and lower. It has stalled by its own stupidity and greed. The people are in rebellion. They now have a leadership. They have six or eight months to organize and then they can fight with every prospect of victory.

Cheese Makers in Favor of Changes In Marketing Law

Want Certain Sections Repealed — Appleton Man Among Award Winners

Milwaukee (AP)—A resolution describing the state cooperative marketing law as class legislation and recommending repeal of certain sections of the law was unanimously adopted by the Wisconsin Cheese Makers association at the annual convention here yesterday.

Delegates were told that an effort will be made at the next session of the legislature to repeal the law.

The resolution, specifically recommending repeal of Sections 96.6 to 96.66, alleged the taxpayers' money is being used to promote the interests of certain groups to the detriment of others in the organization and development of co-operative associations for production and marketing purposes.

A resolution requesting that the legal moisture content of process cheese be made equal to that of factory cheese also was adopted. Other resolutions had to do with plans for a nation-wide campaign to stimulate sales of cheese, that the present system of cheese grades be continued, and that grading of cheese should be done by cheese buyers or cheese markets as at present, and that the system of supervising grades be continued.

No Action on Moisture

No action was taken on a resolution calling on the next legislature to repeal the cheese moisture law, and another favoring changes in the law to define washed curd cheese and Colby cheese, so as to contain up to 41 per cent moisture and 1 per cent tolerance.

Time to Bolster Prices, Hotel Conference Told

New York (AP)—Charles F. Abbott, executive director of the American Institute of Steel Construction, told the Hotel Business Promotion conference today that "now is the time to bolster up prices."

We have had two years of fighting, two years of price demoralization," he said.

"Costs have been disregarded, salaries and wages have been cut many times, and price-cutting has driven prices lower and lower. 'If we keep up this selfish, ignorant, mad rush for business at any old price, if we fail to advance commodity prices by constructive methods, business as a whole will be wrecked and so will the government as well as our people.'"

Plan Confabs On Budget and Debts Issues

Important Conferences to Be Held Next Week At White House

Washington (AP)—A medley of official talk and conferences today encompassed the pressing issues of war debts and a balanced budget, subjects of two momentous White House conferences next week.

At the first, President Hoover and President-elect Roosevelt will discuss informally on Tuesday afternoon these and other matters of vital and national interest. An advisor Secretary Mills in the president's case, will attend each.

The second, scheduled for the next morning, will give the chief executive an opportunity to survey the foreign debt problem with congressional directors of financial legislation. This parley will include the three ranking Democratic and Republican members of the house ways and means committee and the senate finance committee.

These plans were announced by the White House yesterday after a telephone conversation between Mr. Hoover and Mr. Roosevelt, and during a series of conferences in budget matters between the president and such aides as Secretary Hurley, Postmaster General Brown and J. Clawson Roop, director of the budget.

Present Deficit

Available for the president's fiscal studies were latest treasury figures showing a deficit exceeding $709,000,000 on Nov. 15. Also at hand were tax data showing that despite improved collections in October, collections for the first four months of the 1933 fiscal year were only $388,108,065 compared with $455,144,328 in the same period a year ago.

Activity on Capitol Hill was paralleling the White House consideration of debt and budget matters. For one thing, the house appropriations committee started on its annual job of trimming down budget figures, spurred by the fact that the treasury's forecast for the fiscal year 1933-34 was $1,000,000,000 below last year's of $1,055,000,000.

Also, the legislators continued to express determined views on the request of Belgium, England and France for a further moratorium while their war debts are reexamined. Representatives Rainey, the Democratic leader, who immediately accepted Mr. Hoover's invitation to confer Wednesday, questioned whether a "single-vote" from the present house.

Express Debt Stands

Other examples of congressional expressions on debts included: Senator Bingham (R., Conn.): "I am strongly opposed to laying a further burden on American taxpayers."

Representative Britten (R., Ill.): "If the ten principal European nations can not jointly pay us the insignificant sum of $123,641,388 on Dec. 15, then we should hold them in default until they do pay."

Senator Ashurst (D., Ariz.): "The Uncle Sam can not reclaim the spendthrifts of Europe by filling their pockets with money."

Representative McFadden (R., Pa.): "Mr. Hoover's moratorium has just been repudiated at the polls."

Women Plead For Retention Of Home Agent

Miss Harriet A. Thompson Presents Report to County Board

Pleas for continuation of services of Miss Harriet A. Thompson, Outagamie agent, were made by a group of farm women this morning at the annual meeting of the county board of supervisors. The women, numbering from 25 to 35, appeared at the meeting in a body to support the club leader.

The appeals to the board followed Miss Thompson's fourth annual report. Her report was illustrated with projects completed during the past year by boys' and girls' clubs, and farm women's groups. They included canned goods, hooked rugs and other sewing projects.

Miss Thompson, in addition to recounting activities of the past year, outlined plans for 1933. During the coming year, she said, a thorough economy program will be conducted for women's groups, thus giving these women the opportunity for assisting in relief work.

Institutes Planned. Several institutes, some for Red Cross work and similar relief agencies, are to be conducted, she announced. She said her department also will attempt to organize several groups for young unmarried people beyond the 4-H club age.

"This past year I have spent considerable time on club work and in the coming year we hope to spend even more time because the rural boy and girl needs constructive guidance now more than ever before," she said. "We are planning to increase our club enrollment at least 100 members, and in increasing the numbers we want to get more members in the towns of Center, Buchanan, Ellington, Dale, Kaukauna, Vandenberg, Osborne, Freedom and Liberty."

She said the department also is making plans for educational tours through various mills and factories. The department also hopes to organize county 4-H club leaders into a federated group to meet every month or six weeks to discuss problems and receive educational material to take back to their groups, she said.

How Pay Is Divided. Discussing the financing of her work, Miss Thompson said the county contributes $800 toward salary and $700 toward expense money, the state and federal government matches this amount with $1,250 for salary and $50 for travel and expenses at state conferences.

Into this state and federal fund, she said, Outagamie-co pays whether it has a home and club agent or not, and some other county will reap the harvest. In figuring the actual cost of this work to the taxpayer, we find that on a $10,000 assessed valuation the taxpayer pays less than 10 cents a year for this service, she declared.

The county board voted to retain the services of Stanley A. Stalid, district attorney, as special counsel in the suit filed for $1,000,000 against the county by Onondaga Indians. It was pointed out that Mr. Stalid is intimately acquainted with the issues involved in the suit for back taxes, which the Indians claim were illegally assessed. To discontinue the services of Mr. Stalid when he is succeeded to the office of district attorney by Frank F. Wheeler, would put the burden on a man who is not acquainted with these details, one supervisor pointed out. Because of conflicts in engagements of several supervisors, the board unanimously voted to adjourn the session from Nov. 19 to Nov. 28.

Blarney Stone to Remain in Castle, Owner Declares

Cork, Irish Free State—(AP)—Sir George Colthurst, owner of Blarney castle, emphatically denied a report from Cleveland, Ohio, that part of the famous "Blarney stone" had been removed to that city. Furthermore, he said, the stone is not going over to the United States.

"We have had numerous offers for the castle, one from an American syndicate which proposed moving the castle in entirety to America—an offer my father refused," Sir George said.

"The stone is in such a part of the castle that it could not be removed unless the building were torn down. Year after year we find people gathering pebbles from the ground around the castle. There is more Blarney stone sold from Germany alone than would build six Blarney castles."

No More Piles

How to End Terrible Agony Without Salves or Cutting

Thousands of Pile sufferers do not know that the cause of Piles is internal—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel. That is the scientific truth about Piles—the real reason why salves and suppositories do not give permanent relief, why cutting does not remove the cause.

Your itching, bleeding or protruding Piles will only go when you actually remove the cause—and not one minute before. External treatments can't do this—an internal medicine should be used. HEN-ROID, the prescription, Dr. J. S. Leonard, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, drives out congested blood, heals and restores the almost dead parts. HEN-ROID has such a wonderful record of success in even the most stubborn cases that Schiltz Bros. and all good druggists advise every sufferer to get a bottle of HEN-ROID Tablets today. They must end your Pile agony or money back—Adv.

Association to Compete in State Feeding Contest

Meyer Outlines Plans for Sportsmen's Program At Meeting

Detailed plans for entering the winter feeding contest to be conducted by the Wisconsin Conservation commission were outlined by Richard Meyer at a meeting of the Outagamie-co Fish and Game Protective association Thursday evening at Actual Business college on E. College-ave. Members from Appleton, New London, Kaukauna, Stephentown, Hortonville and other neighboring towns and cities were present.

Mr. Meyer pointed out that the state commission will award prizes to the sportsmen's group which gets the most points in the erection of feeding stations and bird shelters during the winter. He said a determined effort is to be made by the county association to win first prize. The speaker pointed out that the county group already has a lead on similar organizations in the state, having been highly commended last season for its feeding program.

Efforts are to be made to get sportsmen from other neighboring communities, not now affiliated with the association, to cooperate with the county group in conducting the winter program. Members from other nearby towns pointed out that they have stations which they will erect and give credit to the association in the contest.

Many Awards. The conservation commission is to award hundreds of pheasants of various kinds, including Mongolian and Ringnecks, and mallard ducks to the winners of the contest. Reports of various sportsmen's groups must be certified before May 1, 1933, before they are eligible for competition. Criticism of various game laws now applied to Outagamie and Waupaca-cos, was made by several sportsmen. It was pointed out that efforts are to be made to change some of these laws before the 1933 season opens. Two of four black pheasants received last week by the association were exhibited last night. These birds, with others, are to be placed on the association's game farm at Stephentown, Mr. Meyer reported.

Help Reduce Costs, Duffy Urges Board

Cooperation Needed to Restore Prosperity, Says U. S. Senator-Elect

A plea to the county board to cooperate with state and national governments in curtailing unnecessary expenditures in the restoration of prosperity was made by Ryan Duffy, Fond du Lac, U. S. Senator-elect, at the annual meeting of the board at the courthouse this morning. Mr. Duffy was introduced by T. H. Ryan, Appleton.

Stressing the need for cooperation between all agencies of government, and between Democrats, Republicans and other political parties in fighting the depression, Mr. Duffy said everyone must battle to hold expenditures to a minimum and within their incomes.

Discussing the outcome of the recent presidential election, he said political leaders of all parties are now able to work on new viewpoints. The citizens of the United States when they went to the polls on Tuesday, Nov. 8 expressed their desire for a change, not only in political parties, but in the trend of everyday affairs, he said.

Everybody Must Help
"Every governmental body is being forced to retrench, and by adopting drastic measures in the fight to make ends meet, many people's feelings are being injured," he said. "But that cannot be helped. Those people, like all of us, must not look to selfish enterprise in these times of depression, but all must put out shoulders to the wheel and help push."

He said there are many drastic measures which may be only of temporary expediency. Everyone must budget himself or herself to the least amount of income expected during the coming year, he said.

Discussing county expenditures, he said that county boards this year, more than ever before, require from citizens like other governing bodies, there are those who are responsible for certain positions and when certain departments are wiped out for the sake of economy, there is bound to be hard feelings. But the same situation is found at Washington, D. C. and at the state capital, where drastic measures must be taken, he pointed out.

Priest, Housekeeper Slugged by Burglar

Milwaukee — (P) — Slugged by a burglar who entered the parish house of St. Patrick Catholic church, Father Thomas Berry, 32, and the housekeeper, Miss Rose Pettit, 35, were confined to a hospital today.

Miss Pettit, sister of the pastor, the Rev. Francis J. Pettit, suffered a skull fracture and was reported in a critical condition. She screamed when her assailant struck her as she entered the parish house library and Father Berry was slugged when he ran to her rescue.

The burglar apparently had secreted himself when the two priests and Miss Pettit returned from a school party. He escaped without harm. Father Pettit is in his study and reached the library after the man had fled.

Charges Irregularities

At Pennsylvania Polls
Philadelphia — (P) — Jacob J. Mueller, a Roosevelt watcher at the recent election, told the house committee on campaign expenditures today that he saw illegal assistance being given voters in a polling place.

"At least three men were allowed to vote who don't live in the division," he said. "I saw Elmer Turner, a county employee, hand at least three voters envelopes which I saw opened and which contained $3 each."

"A woman was taken back of the curtain in the booth and given assistance, but no affidavit taken to show she needed and no record of the assistance was made," the witness said, adding that "drunken persons were also permitted to vote."

Flashes of Life
Soap in Their Mouths
Detroit — Comedians on Detroit bus stages will be using a scrubbing brush on some of their faces. Moreover, the license of one theatre will be held up until a police censor can sit through its shows without a blush.

That was the edict of Mayor Frank Murphy after a hearing. A little more clothing on some of the actresses wouldn't hurt, he added, but ruled that scant attire "is not the serious offense."

Just a Beginner
Oakland, Calif. — A jury faces this problem: Tom Sharman named by Luigi Borello as the driver of an automobile in a fatal collision, admitted he was "too drunk to know." But the trial was stopped and Borello was made manslaughter defendant instead of Sharman after other witnesses said Borello was on the tip of Menz's sword slipped off and Sunderman had to get medical assistance for a long cut under his ear.

Pain in the Neck
Minneapolis — The swordsmanship of Clifford Menz, playing the hero in the University of Minnesota Singers' opera "The Vagabond King" was just a pain in the neck to William Sunderman, stage director. While Sunderman was coaching Menz in the art of fencing the protecting button on the tip of Menz's sword slipped off and Sunderman had to get medical assistance for a long cut under his ear.

It Is Said--
That at least one Roosevelt vote is explained. A woman customer in a local store was asked for her opinion concerning the outcome of the election. Her reply was "Oh I guess Roosevelt will make a good president all right—he did pretty well before."

Asks Economy

Pointing to the need of cooperation all along the line, E. L. Cord, Fond du Lac, U. S. Senator-elect, this morning appeared before the county board, urging the supervisors to do their bit in keeping expenditures down to a minimum.

Wall-st Watches Fight for Control Of Aviation Corp.

E. L. Cord Trying to Best Group Backed by Banking Houses

New York — (P) — Battles for control of corporations, from the famous Harman-Hill contest for the Northern Pacific on down, have never failed to stir Wall-st to excitement.

Right now, the effort of E. L. Cord, spectacular "youngster" among the automobile manufacturers, to seize control of Aviation Corp., from a group backed by such old Wall-st banking houses as Brown Bros., Harriman and Co., and Lehman Bros., is engaging the Wall-st spotlight.

This fight appears to be developing into the bitterest struggle for stockholders' proxies since A. F. Giannini, California banker, arose from retirement last year to match control of Transamerica Corp., from an eastern group headed by Elsie Walker, veteran investment banker.

It is the first major struggle in the aviation industry since 1930, when United Aircraft and Transport Corp. acquired control of National Air Transport, Inc., over the intense opposition of C. M. Keys and the Curtiss-Wright Corp., interests.

While Cord is only 38 years old, and has never been closely identified with Wall-st—he was laying the basis of his fortune selling automobiles in Chicago only a few years ago—he has the backing of a white-haired chief of large-scale finance, Frank A. Vanderlip, former president of the National City Bank. He has also the support of two prominent stock exchange houses, E. F. Hutton and Co., and E. A. Pierce and Co.

While on a smaller scale, the Cord controversy has some parallels to the struggle in 1930 of Cyrus Eaton, Cleveland capitalist, to block the proposed acquisition of Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co. by the Bethlehem Steel Corp. Eaton, the largest individual stockholder in Youngstown, lost his proxy battle, but blocked the deal in the courts.

Cord, the largest individual stockholder in Aviation Corp., seeks to block its plan of acquiring the North American Aviation, Inc. In the steel controversy, Eaton's opponents charged, over his protestations, that he wanted to control Youngstown to further his own merger plans. He had just completed the Republic Steel merger. In the Cord struggle, the present management of Aviation Corp. charges Cord wishes to get control to further his own airplane and motor manufacturing activities, while Cord says he opposes the deal because it is inequitable to stockholders. He says he is fighting "banking management."

in which they were riding, driven by Delbert Wachlin, Black Creek, and a student at Appleton high school, ran into a wagon load of wood near the Elmer Heiden farm, four miles south of Black Creek on Highway 47. The driver of the wagon, Ernest Bergman, Appleton, was thrown from the wagon by the impact but succeeded in keeping the horses from running away. He was not injured.

Wachlin and two other students in the car, Robert Laird and Howard Gehrke, were uninjured. The young people were on their way to school when the accident occurred. Both car and wagon were going in the same direction, and it is thought the heavy fog was the cause of the crash.

The injured people were taken to Black Creek where they were treated by a physician. The front end of the car, a new sedan owned by Wachlin's father, was badly damaged, while the wagon was only slightly damaged.

Rescued From Canal
Miss Iola Cahoe, daughter of Mrs. Thomas Cahoe, Whitney-st., Kaukauna, was rescued from the tail-race canal near the Main-ave bridge at Kaukauna about 7:30 this morning by John Skalmusky, section foreman, and several by-standers. She is a sophomore in Kaukauna high school. The girl had left her home for school earlier in the morning.

A car belonging to John Van Ryan, Little Chute, was slightly damaged about 6:45 last night when it collided with another driven by William Ohlrogge, Appleton, at the corner of W. Franklin and N. Appleton-sts. The Ohlrogge car was going west on W. Franklin, the Van Ryan car south on N. Appleton. No one was injured.

Help Improve World, Says Bible Lecturer

"The purpose of religion for centuries has been to get people out of this world into Heaven; good people are now talking about bringing Heaven down to this world," said the Rev. Ingram Bill in the fourth of a series of Bible lectures Thursday night at the Baptist church.

The speaker told of an incident during a lecture he was giving in Denver when a minister said to him, "For years I have not voted because my citizenship is in Heaven," to which the speaker replied, "My dear fellow, why don't you go and live in your own country?"

"No man has a right to talk about his citizenship in Heaven who is not interested in creating a better type of citizenship here upon the earth," he continued.

This series of Bible studies will be brought to a close Sunday night in an elaborate dramatized service in which 100 young people and children will appear in pageant and pantomime.

The pageant of which the Rev. Mr. Bill is author and director, entitled "Ruth, the Devoted, an Idyll of World Friendship," is divided into four episodes, "Ruth, Ancestress of a Royal King," "David, King of Israel," "Jesus, King of Kings," and "The Kingdom of God on Earth."

A children's Bible pantomime of which the Rev. Mr. Bill is also author, entitled, "The Prodigal Son," will precede the pageant. Both productions will be presented with full lighting, costuming, and musical effects.

Vote May Rule

Republicans are claiming control of the coming short session of the U. S. Senate through the apparent election of Karl C. Schuyler, above. Schuyler has a lead of about 500 votes before two isolated precincts' votes and absentee ballots were counted. The ballot box of one isolated precinct must travel across two mountain ranges. There is no telephone line on which to report the standing Schuyler, attorney for Henry M. Blackmer, Despot Dome fugitive, was opposed by Walter Walker, Democrat.

Winter Invades Eastern Seaboard And Southern Area

Eases Up on Northwest but Threatens New York And New Orleans

(By the Associated Press)

The nation's weather map was as spotted today as a polka dot dress. A wintry blast that moved across the country from the west yesterday appeared to be spending itself in a final burst of fury at scattered points along the eastern seaboard and in the south.

While the Pacific northwest was welcoming success from a stormy spell New York was awaiting a chilly onslaught. The snow was melting on the prairies of eastern Kansas today while Washington, D. C., was faced with a prediction of "much colder" tonight.

And away down south in Dixie New Orleans was anticipating freezing weather, and Atlanta saw the mercury near 20 degrees above.

Michigan was still blanketed by snow but Oklahoma, which saw the mercury drop to 14 yesterday, was promised a let-up in the cold snap by nightfall.

Though snow-covered the mountains of Utah and Idaho the temperature today had returned to normal. Northern and western Texas were shuddering in freezing and sub-freezing weather but Montana temperatures were climbing upward.

The New England states, despite heavy fog or rain in all portions were not yet threatened with winter's blasts and reported temperatures ranging from 46 at Northfield, Vt., upward to 58 at New Haven.

Snow in Indianapolis
Indianapolis was digging itself out of the heaviest snowfall the Hoosier capital has experienced in 30 years. In the city 8.6 inches of snow fell yesterday while in central and northern Indiana 12 inches were common in many places. In some sections rural schools were forced to close.

Kentucky, which saw its second snow of the season yesterday, today was rejoicing in a forecast of "warmer" but Albany, N. Y., where a light rain fell throughout the night, was contemplating prospects of snow and colder weather.

Philadelphia boasted mild temperatures today but Richmond, Va., witnessed the rapid descent of the mercury.

Birmingham, Ala., was swept by cold winds and Nashville, Tenn., anticipated a maximum drop to 18 degrees.

Eastern Missouri looked for more snow before sunset but Colorado and New Mexico trusted in the weather man's prediction of fair and warmer.

Airplanes on commercial lines were kept on the ground at Buffalo and Pittsburgh yesterday.

Conway Suggests Slashes in Costs Of State Schools

Taxpayers' Alliance Chief Thinks Some Schools Should be Closed

Madison — (P) — The time has come when educational authorities of the state should point out that state and county aid often result in continuing schools which ought to be closed, J. M. Conway, president of the Wisconsin Taxpayers' Alliance, said today.

Conway sent a letter to the Wisconsin Journal of education, replying to an editorial in that publication which suggested that critics of governmental expenditures should in fairness tell of the good things which government provides.

Conway, who regarded the editorial as being directed at the alliance's recent volume, "Your Money and Your Taxes," declared that the alliance appreciates Wisconsin's excellent educational system but believes if manifest imperfections are corrected the system will be improved.

Conway said he had proof of one instance in a northern Wisconsin school district where the state superintendent of schools notified local officials that conditions justified only two teachers in a school but that four teachers were employed because the district could get state and county aids to pay their salaries.

"But it is time that the educational authorities of the state point out the fact that state and county aids often result in continuing schools which ought to be closed," Conway said. "Isn't it time that educators recommended a sane and practical plan for combining rural schools in squarely settled communities, thereby lessening the load on taxpayers and affording better educational facilities for rural pupils?"

Agreement Ends Fight for Control Of Aviation Corp.

Cord and Rivals Reach Accord in Spectacular Proxy Battle

New York — (P) — The spectacular fight for control of the Aviation Corp. of Delaware and its operating subsidiary, American Airways, has ended in an agreement.

After days of charges and counter charges, which threw Wall-st and the financial community into two sharply opposing camps, it was announced last night that the opposition E. L. Cord and the other by La Motte T. Cohu, president, had reached a compromise.

The agreement provides that the board of directors shall be reduced to 15, that five shall be selected by Cord and his group, five by the present board, which Cord is seeking to control and the remaining five chosen by mutual agreement between the two factions.

Cord, newly risen automotive financier and a heavy stockholder in the Aviation Corp., had sought to oust the corporation's present management. The quarrel followed a plan of the board of directors to buy the assets of North American Aviation through a stock issue.

The fight over the huge aviation concern involved a battle for proxies unprecedented in the airplane field and the expenditure of large sums for advertising.

Cord is due here by airplane from the Pacific coast today. Cohu and L. E. Manning, executive vice president of the Cord Corp. and a member of the Cord camp, issued a joint statement, saying:

"An arrangement has been arrived at by representatives of both contending groups of directors of the Aviation Corporation looking to a settlement of the existing controversy. The arrangement will be submitted shortly to the board of directors for its approval.

"It is proposed that the board be reduced to 15 in number, one-third to be selected by the present board, other than the Cord interests; one-third by the Cord group, and one-third independent prominent men mutually agreed upon by both groups.

"All matters at issue will be resolved by the new board and litigation ended."

State Contract Bridge Tourney Here in January

Dr. George E. Massart Is Named Chairman of Committee in Charge

A state-wide contract bridge tournament will be held here in January, it was announced last night at a meeting of the Appleton Contract Bridge association at the Elk club. The tournament will be sponsored jointly by the association and the Appleton Post-Crescent.

Play probably will take place on a Saturday afternoon, the date to be selected later, and several hundred teams of two will enter, it is expected. The tournament either will be conducted at the Elk club or the North Shore Country club, according to tentative plans.

Details are being worked out now by a committee headed by Dr. George E. Massart, president of the Appleton association. Practically every city in the Fox river valley is expected to send a large delegation to the tournament. Milwaukee and Madison also will be well represented.

"We expect that this tournament will serve as an incentive for the organization a Wisconsin Contract Bridge association," Dr. Massart said. "With contract bridge clubs flourishing in the majority of valley cities, there is a strong nucleus for a state-wide organization."

Prizes in the Appleton association's tourney last night were won by William Roemer and Dr. Massart, playing east and west, and Casper Miller and L. E. Sugerman, playing north and south.

Food Matinee for Children at Fox

A food matinee will be held at the Fox theatre Saturday morning. Children will buy admission to the two hour program with foodstuffs which will be distributed to Appleton's needy on Thanksgiving day. The plan has been commended by Mayor John Goodland, Jr., who urges parents to support the project by providing their youngsters with vegetables or canned goods to donate to the collection.

Circuit Court Jury Gives Decision of Damages For Eviction

Dr. H. A. Schefelker, Marion, was awarded $2,158 damages by a circuit court jury at Waupaca yesterday in his suit against the First National Bank of Marion for eviction from offices over the bank. The case went to the jury about 10:45 yesterday morning and a verdict was returned at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The doctor charged he had been unlawfully evicted from his offices over the bank and thereby suffered financial loss. In its decision the

Common Sense
Business Need,
Analyst Avers

Thorough Analysis of Depression Trends Made
By Chamber Speaker

A far-reaching and penetrating analysis of business, based on unchallengeable surveys, and mingled with optimism for the business future, was made by William S. Ford, Milwaukee, consulting management engineer, in the second of a series of lectures sponsored by Appleton Chamber of Commerce at Conway hotel Thursday afternoon. About 70 Appleton business men attended the meeting.

The lecture on "Appraising Net Profit Possibilities" was profusely illustrated with graphs and charts prepared from widespread surveys. They revealed simple methods of making individual business surveys, and showed the general trend of business in some fields of industry.

Analyzing methods of appraising individual industries and forecasting earnings, the speakers said it is time for executives to resort to common sense reasoning. He said there are such basic changes in the making that executives no longer can trust their own experience of the past as a guide to the future. It is essential that these business heads have some orderly, reliable and logical line of reason whereby they can get their bearings again, he declared.

Mr. Ford outlined seven subjects which must be considered in appraising the earning possibilities of a business institution, and stated that the seventh, on management, will be dealt with separately in the third and final lecture early next month.

Under the first of the six groups he described what is meant by momentum in business, pointing out the high spots to look for in a study of financial conditions and operating history. He also reviewed business methods relating to tangible and intangible property.

In the second group he suggested basic changes which are in process in economic life, and reviewed trends in consumer buying. He emphasized the importance now of common sense, first-hand market research work in sensing the attitude toward the products, which business men have to offer.

Discussing the outcome of the recent presidential election and its possibilities of affecting the future of business, the speaker said, "the sweeping Democratic victory is more than the result of a contest between two parties and their principles. It is probably significant of profound changes in the social order brought about by the pressure from those whose rising resentment, because of their disappointment at the failure of old conditions to return, demands a new deal, the nature of which has not been publicly formulated."

He said that now, as seldom before, the business man must be alert to the influences of political action whose far-reaching effects may change the whole complexion of his outlook for earnings.

"But more important to the man in business than even these political angles are the habits going on in the living and buying habits of the people who make up the market upon which he is dependent," he said.

"There is many a self-styled high-powered executive, sitting on his mahogany dung hill year after year directing the selling efforts of men in the field, who has never called on a customer, but his clan is getting smaller and smaller. There are presidents of important companies who have but the faintest conception of what their sales force is up against in the field.

"If there are any of these men here today, may I suggest that you go back to the office, turn that batch of unanswered correspondence over to your secretary who will probably answer it anyway, call up the wife, tell her to have your bag ready and cancel all of your bridge dates. You're going away, you're not sure just where, but you won't be back for two weeks even for Thanksgiving dinner. You're going out after some first hand information."

Six Considerations

Six of the seven subjects, the speaker said must be considered in forecasting earnings are: Momentum, resources, facilities, opportunity, competition and economic trends. The first three relate to the individual company, and the last three to the industry at large, he said.

"Be sure to thank auntie if she says she is going to leave you a million dollars. Here's a dime to help you remember."

Momentum, he declared relates to the ability of the company to meet and overcome obstacles and is appraised through a study of its operating history. Resources relates to the company's financial condition and earning record, he pointed out.

He said facilities relate to tangible and intangible property in the industry as a whole and shows the general economic conditions and trends.

Mr. Ford briefly outlined proper methods of preparing and reading financial statements of firms, and presented those present with new forms of preparing these statements with ease and accuracy. Few men, he said, are able to understand thoroughly the sheets of some firms, but if they use common sense reasoning, and make some inquiries, it is not difficult to acquire the necessary information.

"We have known concerns whose policies were controlled by men whose experience was largely in the selling end initiate costly consumer advertising programs in a field where the consumer is only indirectly concerned while a manufacturing cost of over 60 per cent of the sales dollar went unwatched."

"It is difficult to believe what an overwhelming degree the policies of management of business concerns are influenced by the unbalanced point of view of men who feel that the particular subject upon which they are best informed and in which they are most interested, is the one which is most vital to that company.

"When you look at a profit and loss statement, therefore, learn to pick out the elements which have the greatest effect upon the operations of the company and center your attentions upon them," he said.

The speaker said there has been a considerable amount of desultory comment upon over production. He said it is safe to say, however, that most men feel that this is but a temporary ailment which will automatically right itself as this pent up buying power we hear so much about makes itself felt.

Wants Insatiable

"One of the fundamental principles upon which economists of a certain school have based their predictions in the past has been that human wants are insatiable—unlimited—and that we shall go on and on expanding and during the next 10 years; for example, we shall rush forward to new heights."

"It is perfectly obvious to all that for the time being the productive capacity of the country is geared to a point where but a discouragingly small portion of those now employed need be employed in order to produce even on the 1929 basis," he declared.

Quoting "Business Week," the speaker said: "consumption is the Pursuing this analysis further, we learn that while all America, according to statistics which there is every reason to believe are reliable, was actually spending more than its income, this tendency was greatest in the small income group.

If the statement that the increases in labor saving machinery is requiring fewer and fewer men in the income class of $2,000 is correct, then as self made economists we would conclude that the American Consumer Market has hit a snag which is going to require more than legislation to remove.

"Some of us may look to a revival of the automotive trade saying that cars must be replaced, but I wish someone would tell us what we shall use for money when the old flivver gives up the ghost. Thanksgiving Dinners
Are Cheaper This Year

Chicago —(P)— Thanksgiving day dinners are going to be easy on the pocketbook this year. Everything that goes into the traditional dinner for that day is cheaper, much cheaper than last year, except eggs.

Whatever is chosen for the headline attraction, be it turkey, goose duck or plain old roast beef, the cost will be almost enough less to permit buying of the "trimmings" with what is saved.

Turkeys are now quoted wholesale from 8 to 10 cents a pound lower in price than at this time in 1931. The average retail price will run between 25 and 30 cents a pound. The reason ascribed is a turkey crop that is 13 per cent larger than last year's with the bulk of birds large and in excellent shape.

Chickens, ducks and geese are selling from 5 to 8 cents a pound lower, with demand for these fowls reported to be heavy. Prices on these have not been as low since around 1905.

Butter will cost around 7 or 8 cents a pound less, but eggs will probably be higher. A pronounced shortage has caused prices to rise and wholesale quotations are now 2 or 3 cents a pound over a year ago. Garnishes for the dinner are low in price. Sweet potatoes are retailing around 6 or 8 pounds for a quarter and squash can be purchased for a comparative song. Cranberries are also somewhat cheaper as are oysters for the dressing.

A turkey dinner for six people can be prepared, so dieticians say, for less than a five dollar bill.

FEDERAL EMERGENCY RELIEF

The mayor and the common council are earnestly trying to set up a program of public relief which will make the city of Appleton eligible to receive state aid from a $3,000,000 fund loaned to Wisconsin by the Reconstruction Finance corporation. Administration of this fund has been entrusted to the Wisconsin Industrial commission which has set up certain requirements to be met by cities before aid can be extended to them.

Among these requirements is the provision that the work of dispensing relief in the cities must be under competent direction. First of all there must be a supervisor trained in relief work and qualified as an administrator. Then there must be trained investigators, with a definite maximum number of indigent families for each investigator.

Appleton can meet these requirements for trained administrators and investigators, it is said, by appointing a special overseer for poor relief and two additional investigators. The council already has taken action toward selecting the investigators, and it should not be impossible to obtain the services of the special administrator.

The city, of course, should do all that is reasonable to obtain this federal aid. The additional expense caused by the employment of the administrator and investigators will be more than defrayed by the state aid which is equal to one half of the total amount of money spent by the municipality for public relief, including the overhead expense of poor commissioners and investigators. The money is paid monthly on the basis of expenses for the last preceding month.

Any action taken by the common council to reduce the burden of taxation, so long as it does not reduce efficiency to the point where money is wasted, deserves the commendation of the taxpayer. State aid for relief certainly will have the effect of reducing the burden on Appleton taxpayers, and at the same time it does not increase the burden upon the state. To obtain the money from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the state has pledged its federal highway aid as security for repayment, and the federal money, of course will not be available for highway purposes. This, however, will not constitute a loss for the state as it can easily curtail its highway program without seriously affecting any person or any locality. It is one of the rare cases by which a municipality can obtain state aid for itself without increasing the burden for some other locality. That kind of help is welcomed in Appleton.

NATIONAL RAGWEED PARADE

Julia Ellsworth Ford of Rye, New York, has hay fever, a trenchant pen and determination. Writing a press article for a New York paper on the menace of ragweed she cannot help but perform miracles in the campaign because she has "a way with her."

She adopted as a text, and put to good purpose, a sentence from one of Will Rogers' boyish letters: "Every town should have some kind of yearly celebration, have a parade," and she thinks the best kind of a parade is a National Ragweed parade.

In 1925 we had a million sufferers from hay fever but by 1931 the indicator had shot up to 10 million. Where does she get the figures? No matter. They are impressive. And if they aren't true they ought to be true, for the sneezing, gasping, choking asthmatics were on every corner last summer. Writer Ford is in favor of starting this parade in California and putting Will Rogers at the head of it as generalissimo. In order that the marchers may stand the exercise they must be provided with masks, poison gas masks, and that is a double-jointed recommendation because it will start up the mask industry.

Miss Ford has a kind word to say of Chicago because Chicago engaged thousands of unemployed to pull up ragweed and she has burning things to say of other officials nearer home who, not being bothered with hay fever themselves, gave little concern to those who were. Nor is she sparing of the medical profession. Yes, they have discovered many things. True, they have written books, lots of them. But they haven't done the real thing, taken the necessary steps to get ragweed pulled up by the roots.

If there are others like Miss Ford all over the country, next summer is going to be a black year in the history of ragweed.

THE SOCIALIST FAILURE

The Socialist party in America has just ground for great disappointment. In the recent election it polled only 557,000 votes, and though this was twice the vote of four years ago it is only half the vote polled by Debs in 1920 and even less than polled by Benson in 1916 before woman suffrage greatly increased the total vote cast.

It was expected, and not by Socialists alone, that the unhappy conditions prevailing in the country would greatly increase its vote. In addition it presented nominees for the presidency and vice-presidency of high mental endowment and obviously sincere purposes. Yet, despite these patent advantages, it failed miserably in enlisting the support of the electorate.

Probably there are a considerable number of reasons that account for this result, but two stand out prominently.

In the first place the Socialist party has an irremovable foreign odor about it that has never quite suited America and that, as Americans have behind them further generations of Americans, will become even more undesirable.

Yet the greatest objection the American voter finds in Socialism arises from his conviction that it contains too many parts of theory and that it will not withstand the rough usage of practical life. Too many Americans feel that Socialism presents a tight harness, perhaps good to look upon but difficult to wear and bear.

And underneath this American antagonism is the bedrock through which Socialistic drills have never been able to pierce—the general satisfaction of the American citizen with his form of government, the condition of society it has produced, the degree of opportunity it affords, the standard of justice it presents, and the future it unfolds.

True, a man need not be a soapbox orator to find flaws, and plenty of them, in our civilization, but lurking in every man's mind in one form or another is the old cautious admonition that it were better far to endure such evils as we may have, and try gradually to eradicate them, than to blindly plunge into a condition that assuredly too will have its own evils, beside which our present ones may dwarf into insignificance.

A MAGNIFICENT REALITY

A magnificent reality of the recent election and one which should be of interest to the world at large, is the manner in which American democracy continues to function. Amid thronging problems in a period of trial when popular government is being assailed with more than usual vehemence for its alleged inability to find the way out, democracy in the United States again displays and confirms its strength.

It comes at a time when Russia is celebrating its fifteenth anniversary of the revolution which brought the Communists to power and when Mussolini is strutting ten years of fascism before his subjects—both extreme dictatorships in which the individual has lost most of his liberty.

Of talk of dictators there has been some, of economic planning much more, all being based on the alleged failure of democracy. This is to be expected in that all sorts of panaceas, governmental, social and economic, are bound to rise and disappear with the ebb and flow of national life, as certain classes of our educational intelligentsia, and others not so intelligent, strive to bring their theoretical hypotheses to practical application.

In the United States democracy still appears willing and eager to face its problems just as it did a year ago in Great Britain when the voting masses, confronted with a national emergency, accepted sacrifices of class and party fealty, greatly increased financial burdens and a tighter belt in wages and relief pay; or as in France in 1926 when the people consented to pay the price of economic salvation by destroying three-fourths of existing currency values and then set to work on a notable climb back to economic health.

We have just passed through the spectacle of an electorate in a population of 125,000,000 people forming the functions of popular government with a sense of responsibility, multiplied manifold by crisis, that sees no other way out of its predicament except the democratic way. As the depression deepened and unemployment increased, so grew the feeling that freedom and liberty in action were precious things to be preserved.

Democracy will continue to function in the United States through our party system, so excellently set up. Sacrifices may be necessary, even greater than have already been experienced, but they will be met with courage, though the need of them is more likely to be due to our failure to practice democracy than through any fault of democracy itself.

APPLETON POST-CRESCENT

WHILE the newspapers of the country are generally predicting that Proxey Hoover will approve of beer during the coming congressional session, it strikes us that they may be overlooking something . . . the prohibition laws are many-sided and on one of those sides are laws which throttle the advertising of beer and other such liquids . . . naturally, the manufacturers will want to advertise . . . there being several varieties of beer ready to go on the market . . . but we shall see what we shall see . . . after all, beer—government taxed beer, we mean—isn't back yet . . .

They've been mentioning Herb Hoover, also for the presidency of Stanford University. However, if Stanford loses the California game, the chances are that first consideration will be given to retiring Pop Warner and getting a new coach.

Seriously, Dick Hanley was mentioned for the job. For a couple of years, Dick has been regarded at Northwestern as one of the swellest coaches in the world. His teams achieved championships, you see. Then along came this year, and because a couple of tackles were graduated last June, Northwestern did not have such a successful season. Result: Hanley is just the least bit of a bum in Evanston.

The Prince of Wales must have enjoyed his trip to Ireland to open up the new Irish Parliament buildings. There was an army of 12,000 to keep check on him along with nine bombing planes and a couple of warships. There were some armored cars, too.

Nevertheless, lots of people were prevented from witnessing the doings because some of the boys ripped up railroad tracks and halted the excursion trains.

The Irish take their dedications seriously.

Chicago is bragging because a warm wind kept the town from catching itself a bad cold. Tsk, tsk, Chicago, we can remember last winter when your streets were blocked and snow was raging around the loop, while up in Appleton there was just some chilly weather.

Don't brag about your climate, Chicago, otherwise California will arrange with the weatherman to raise the particular dickens with you this winter.

Tomorrow comes one of the last batch of predictions of football results. As this is written, we cannot help but feel that the three conference leaders—Michigan, Purdue and Wisconsin, will win. But by tomorrow, we will be a trifle nutty again and predict some things backwards.

Just Folks

By Edgar A. Guest

THE ORDINARY FOLKS

Just an ordinary man, eight and forty to the day,
With a pair of stout-legged children starting upwards on life's way
And the mother of them mending little garments when they fray.

Just an ordinary house on an ordinary street
Where a grocer and a druggist and a foundry
And the mother of them mending little garments when they fray.

Just an ordinary yard filled with ordinary things,
A clump of shasta daisies and nasturtiums climbing strings.
A patch of grass to sprawl on, and a happy bird that sings!

Why these ordinary lines in this ordinary way
To the ordinary people we encounter every day?
Just because they stand to duty when some softer people stray.

HOUSEMAID'S KNEE IS NOT SO FUNNY

Seems the funny papers are less interested in housemaid's knee than they were formerly, or else housemaids are taking more care of their knees nowadays.

Upon or in front of the patella (knee cap) there is a vee bag or sac of fluid called a bursa, which serves as a pad or cushion in case you should ever kneel. Inflammation of this prepatellar bursa is the condition known as "housemaid's knee." Any injury to the tip of the knee, or prolonged pressure or friction there may cause the bursitis. Thinking floors, working in the garden, or any job in which one remains a considerable time on one or both knees, without care to use a comfortable cushion, subjects the bursa to irritation. Scrubbing floors on the knees isn't done any more except in the movies where the heroine's meteoric ascension or innate graciousness must be registered.

Prepatellar bursitis manifests itself as a large rounded tense swelling in front of the patella or knee cap, filled with a thick fluid. Tenderness and redness complete the classical picture of inflammation—color, dolor, rubor, tumor—heat, pain, redness and swelling. The knee must be kept at rest, half bent, in a well padded splint or sling. Ice bags or evaporating lotions best oppose the inflammation at first. Hot moist dressings or a poultice will give more relief. When much fluid is present it should be drawn off thru a needle. Sometimes pus accumulates in the bursa, and that requires incision and drainage.

In a few cases the acute inflammation subsides under such treatment, but the trouble does not clear up entirely and some slight swelling, thickening and soreness of tenderness remains. This is chronic bursitis and calls for different treatment. An occasional painting of the skin surrounding the knee cap with iodine is advisable, that is, a ring two inches wide, but no iodine directly upon the point of the knee. Once in 10 days is sufficient for this.

When there is no longer sharp pain or tenderness gentle massage for a few minutes several times a day is helpful. Grasp the knee with the hand and squeeze the skin and soft tissues over the bone repeatedly, as the wringing them out. If the trouble drifts along for more than six weeks the bursa should be surgically removed and a new pad of fat substituted if there is sufficient subcutaneous fat near the wound to make a flap.

It is interesting to note that the chief cause of pain and disability in bursitis is inflammation of the bursa over the head of the metatarsal bone of the great toe. These are only a few samples of the troubles we have from inflammation or infection of these anatomical cushions.

A recently developed mode of treatment, diathermy, when available, perhaps gives more relief than any other remedy and in many cases of bursitis, in any situation, daily diathermy applications for a week or two will render surgical intervention unnecessary.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Visible Pulsations

Is it true that when the pulse can be seen at the wrist or at the side of the neck it indicates a very high blood pressure? (Mrs. E. S.)

Answer—No. Close scrutiny in the right light will reveal pulsations at these and other places in any normal person.

Who's a Fool?

I am 83 years old and in excellent health, thanks largely to following your advice. I get a lot of fun out of life. Please send your recipe for fool-proof cough medicine. This is not for myself, as I am never troubled with such things, but for a friend. (K. S. E.)

Answer—That's what we all think of our friends who need treatment. I have a similar conception of all ailing laymen. So please send your friend's address on a stamped envelope and I will mail the girl the recipe and instructions, with your compliments.

Jaundice

Sister who the doctor says has glistens suddenly turned a deep yellow color. Doctor said "bile in blood?" (P. C.)

Answer—A stone or "inflammatory swelling or colic, spasm obstructs a bile duct, and more or less of the bile pigment is re-absorbed into the blood from the bile that accumulates in the pool behind the obstruction. (Copyright, John F. Dille Co.)

The Tynymites

By Hal Cochran

THE tire that had split its sides from laughing had had lots of rides, but now it wouldn't hold air that would keep it pumped up high.

Said Scouty, "Well, I did that trick and now I'll have to fix it quick. I think that I can patch the tire right up, if I try."

"And I will help you," Windy cried. "Let's roll it over on its side and take the inner tube out. That will need some patches first."

"And then the outside we can fix. Run get some tire glue that sticks. I've seen a lot of blow-outs, but this really is the worst."

The farmer heard them talking and he said, "I'll gladly lend a hand. I have some patching stuff that's in the tool box of my car."

Kind Duncy ran to get it. He was just as quick as he could be. When he rushed back he held it up and shouted, "Here you are!"

It didn't take them long to fix the tire. Soon it was strong. The farmer thanked the lads and said, "I'll show you something new."

"I spilled some magic oil around my auto jack and then I found that it had come to life. Let's watch and see what it will do."

The jack stood up and stretched a bit and then it cried, "I'm feeling fit. Just watch me jump out of this tool box. Then I'll jump right back."

"You needn't be afraid of me, 'cause I'm as friendly as can be. Instead of being just a jack, I'm now a jumping jack."

"And then it jumped around a while, which made all the Tynymites smile. Soon Cappy shouted, "That's enough! You are a funny sight."

"Now hop into the box again."

That's what the strange jack did, and then the Tynymites rushed up to the box and closed the big lid tight. (Copyright 1932, NEA Service, Inc.)

Hooked Rug Makers

Utilize Spare Time

Knoxville, Tenn.—(P)—Spare time is being turned into real money in the hooked rug fire-side industry organized on a community-wide basis in two east Tennessee counties.

In Knox and Hamilton counties 45 homemakers with 15 helpers made and sold 225 hooked rugs and 4,221 hooked mats for a total of $4,365.24 in 1931.

The record was better in 1930 when 500 rugs were made and sold for $5,000 and 10,000 mats sold for $10,000 by the Apison community of Hamilton county. At one time the Apison community had an order for $100 worth of rugs per week from Milwaukee, Wis.

Farm Cooperation

Editor Post-Crescent—I wonder how many people realize that prosperity, happiness, health and wealth all is built on the work of the farmer.

We have wonderful machinery, magnificent buildings, wonderful mines, ships and railroad, all of which would be abandoned and worthless if the farmers food supply was cut off.

The wealth the farmer digs from the soil and distributes among the 120,000,000 people is the greatest wealth of the nation.

If the farmer would cease to transfer the earth's fertility into food, civilization would turn back to dust.

The farmers work which is absolutely necessary to life itself, is the work most poorly rewarded. There is a reason for this, and don't you, dear reader, think that at this advanced stage of civilization, it is about time for the farmers to wake up? Is the farmer going to continue to carry the burden of the whole world on his back? (Can he do this much longer and carry on?)

We have in our State, a department, which is known as the Department of Agriculture and Markets. It was established, I believe, to promote agriculture to guide the farmer that he might maintain his homestead. It was a department established to better the farmers condition, financially, morally and physically. It MAY have been intended for all this.

This Department tells us that the law of supply and demand govern the price of all farm produce. I am wondering if this department of Markets thinks that in this enlightened age, they can make the farmers of today believe such "Mother Goose" stories.

Are you going to sit back and let them ruin all possible hope of organized farmers? They have preached commodity organization for 15 years and where have they gotten? Is it a great money power back in the dark somewhere, that is pulling the strings?

Why not give the Milk Pool your support. It is based upon a plan which is a proven success. It asks only for our Constitutional rights. Are we so dumb we cannot ask for this?

I know a man who said that the United States Government could do nothing for the farmer. He also said that the farmer would have to organize and fight for his rights.

Surely, Uncle Sam, is a great friend of you boys. Maybe after all boys, it will be better for us not to organize. Just leave it to the Department of Markets and Dear Old Uncle Sam. What say, boys, let's drift with the tide. Let supply and demand rule our price of farm products. Let's let the well organized money powers grind us under their heels, until we are all tenants and slaves. Let's throw up the spring. Let's just be a flock of sheep, with the rest of the animals, and be driven at will by the money powers. Let's supply their tables with the fruits of the soil. Let's just slave on and on, and cause our children to become slaves and our children's children, and by that time you and I will be layed to rest in Uncle Sam's Fotters' Field.

Let's just give our milk and honey to the rich. Let's feed them with free beef and pork. Let's give them our life's blood drop by drop. Let's Give, Give, and perhaps our reward will be in heaven. Let's take the chance. What say boys?

Let's increase our hours of labor that we may produce more cheaply and thereby increase the wealth of the rich.

We have more laws made, that we may have more lawyers and Government jobs?

Let's fight the laboring man who is our best friend. Let's just grow dumb, dumb, until we are DUMB.

Think it over, Mr. Farmer. Respectfully,
E. R. BOWERMAN, JR.

Hoover Doesn't Yield Reins to His Successor

Meeting With President-Elect Merely Shows Desire to Cooperate

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — President Hoover has by no means surrendered his control over foreign policy or anything else because of his invitation to President-elect Roosevelt to confer with him.

The desire to cooperate is pronounced and Mr. Hoover will go as far as possible toward paving the way for the new administration to take up questions without embarrassing action having been taken in advance of March 4. But the decision as to the debt question for instance will be based on Mr. Hoover's own judgment as to what should be done.

The president is represented as desiring to see the Europeans make their Dec. 15 payments. After that, congress may or may not create a debt funding commission. Mr. Hoover will recommend one but whether the request is granted depends on congress and such influence as Mr. Roosevelt cares to exert with the Democratic house of representatives. If congress fails to take action, Mr. Hoover will notify the European governments that they can take up the matter with the new administration after March 4. Such a notification may not be possible until congress gets through debating the matter.

May Be Delayed
If the Dec. 15 payments are made the chances are congress will let the question drift until after the Christmas recess.

At the moment congressional leaders are opposed to any concession. They oppose revision as well as cancellation. A debt funding commission to examine the question is even considered a sign of weakness, but in the end negotiations may have to be begun in some way either through a commission or through American diplomatic representatives abroad.

The president appears more determined than ever after his return to the White House to do all in his power to accelerate economic recovery. His political future is a matter of some discussion among his friends, most of whom think that the record he makes between now and March 4 will have a bearing on whether there is a come-back possible.

It would be possible for the president to make certain consultations of bureaus and undertake some reorganization of the governmental establishment in advance of March 4 if he had the cooperation of congress, but it is doubtful whether he will get this in view of the conflicting currents of politics. The campaign is only a week old and the truth is the Democratic leaders have not been in conference often enough since to know just what they wish to do. Their task in the next few weeks will be greater than any they have had since assuming power in the lower house. Mr. Roosevelt is depending on the advice of congressional leaders before committing himself to any important steps. His conference with Mr. Hoover now is expected to be simply one of information-getting, for the president-elect and hardly one of determination of governmental policy. The decision as to the Democratic viewpoint probably will be communicated to Mr. Hoover after the conferences between Mr. Roosevelt and the Democratic leaders have taken place in the south. The towering granite monument (above) erected atop Kill Devil Hill near Kitty Hawk, N. C., to mark the site of the first successful flight in a power-driven airplane will be dedicated November 19. The shaft stands as a tribute to the Wright brothers, Orville (left) and the late Wilbur (right), who conquered the air December 17, 1903.

Dedicate Pylon As Tribute to Wright Brothers

Majestic Monument in North Carolina Honors Pioneers of Aviation

Kitty Hawk, N. C.—(AP)—Nearly three decades ago a pair of brothers came to Kitty Hawk and wrote their names in history by making the world's first successful flight in a power-driven airplane.

November 19 a majestic monument in honor of those brothers—Orville and Wilbur Wright—will be dedicated. The monument, a 60-foot granite pylon, stands atop Kill Devil Hill, the scene of the aerial experiments of the Wrights.

Authorized by an act of congress, it was built under supervision of Capt. John A. Gilman. The design was by Robert P. Rodgers and Alfred E. Poor, New York architects. The foundation of the monument is in the shape of a star. The granite shaft is triangular, facing northward toward the spot a short distance away where Orville Wright made the initial flight.

The monument resembles a pylon with a folded wings motif. Around the base is the inscription: "In commemoration of the conquest of the air by the brothers, Wilbur and Orville Wright. Conceived by genius, achieved by dauntless resolution and unquenchable faith."

The shaft is hollow with steps leading to an observation platform. Inside is a room where niches will contain busts of the two pioneering brothers from Ohio.

ROYAL STAMP COLLECTORS
Among the royal stamp collectors, in addition to the King of England, are the Queens of Italy and Belgium, Prince Leopold, Crown Prince of Sweden, and King Fuad of Egypt.

Guard Against Peril of Colds Society Warns

People Advised to Keep Up High Degree of Physical Resistance

Madison — The danger flag of warning was sent out this week by health authorities advising people of the perils that lurk in common colds. With the closing of windows and the use of the furnace in the home of Wisconsin during the past two or three weeks, a regular epidemic of colds has occurred throughout the state. To meet this situation, the State Board of Health recently issued a report on common colds, causes and dangers, which will be sent free upon request.

"The virus of the common cold is lurking in almost every Wisconsin nose, and failure to keep up a high degree of physical resistance will allow it further ingress," declares the Medical Society Bulletin out today.

"Colds are infectious, and are spread from person to person by the excretions of the nose, throat and mouth.

"Colds are serious and should never be regarded as trivial.

"1. Because in children they may be the onset of one of the communicable diseases, such as Measles, Diphtheria, Whooping Cough, and others.

"2. Because they may be the ushering in of Pneumonia, or other serious respiratory diseases.

"3. Because they may linger and render the parts receptive to infective germs, predisposing to infection by Pneumonia.

"4. Because they may extend and infect the middle ear and lead to deafness.

"5. Because they may extend to the sinuses and create a local focus of infection.

"6. Because they may be followed by Chronic Catarrh.

"7. Because they cause suffering, inconvenience and loss of money.

"If a person contracts a cold it should be treated with respect. He should go to bed, secure rest (and with children this should be followed literally); take a hot foot bath, hot drinks to promote sweating, a hot drink to call a physician if at all severe. Children who have a severe cold are not permitted to attend school.

Air Roosevelt's Position Toward League of Nations

President-Elect Would Cooperate but Avoid European Politics

Rome (AP)—President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt was quoted in the records of the Volta Institute convention Wednesday as declaring before his election that the United States should cooperate with the league of nations but should not enter European politics. The statement was read before 200 scientists, statesmen and other intellectuals attending the institute, which was called to make a scientific study of Europe's problems. Viscount Louis de Fontenay, former French ambassador to the Vatican, and one of the founders of the international diplomatic academy, said the Roosevelt opinion was one of several the academy had solicited, before the Volta meeting and before the American elections. "We Democrats," the president-elect was quoted, "do not believe possible, nor do we desire an isolated national existence. We are highly jealous of our sovereignty and consequently are equally respectful of such sentiments in other nations."

Mr. Roosevelt was further quoted as saying America should cooperate with Europe and the league of nations, terming the latter the greatest, existing organization for the conservation of peace and the solution of problems formerly unknown to civilization. "Without entering European politics," the letter was quoted, "America should take an active, serious, and official part in all procedures undertaken in the interest of humanity's general welfare."

Regarding the problems of the American countries, the president-elect was quoted as saying when help was needed by a country in difficulty that it was the duty of the United States to associate herself with other American republics to study the problem together, and if conditions demand it, offer aid in the name of America. Viscount de Fontenay was French ambassador to the Vatican from May, 1928, until July of that year, when he retired and returned to Paris. He became one of the founders of the international diplomatic academy and is its president.

The academy embraces the diplomats of most of the nations and among the American members are Charles Evans Hughes, chief justice of the United States.

Further on Latin American affairs, Mr. Roosevelt was quoted as saying: "The peace, security, integrity and independence of every American republic is the interest of the whole world, not just the United States. It is possible that in the future some of our sister nations might come upon bad days, that disorders and bad government may make temporary aid necessary to restore calm and stability. "In such a case it is not only the right but the duty of the United States to study these problems intelligently together with other American republics, and if conditions demand, to offer assistance in the name of the Americas."

Types of Brain Diseases Are Treated by Machine

Chicago (AP)—A report from the Cook County hospital today said some types of brain diseases had been successfully treated with artificial fever machines. "Out of 350 cases of general paresis, 150 returned to their work completely recovered, 104 returned home improved and able to work, 30 died and the rest showed little change," the report said. The machines, which send electrical waves through the bodies of the patients to produce fever, are used under the direction of Dr. Clarence A. Newmann, associate professor of psychiatry at Northwestern university.

Marchers on U. S. Capital Must Feed And Shelter Selves

Washington (AP)—If the columnists planning to march on the capital persist in the face of police warnings, officials here have decided that when and where they eat and sleep is their own lookout.

Another point, Superintendent E. W. Brown has just made clear, is that truck and automobile caravans must find their own parking places, as police will not provide a central space for the vehicles as they did last year.

A campaign to discourage marchers is being conducted by police authorities. Inspector F. S. W. Burke, chief of detectives, has written to police chiefs of 14 major cities, urging them to attempt to prevent any groups in their areas from joining any trek to the capital.

The police also asked officials in the other cities to advise them of the number, route of march and method of conveyance of any marchers coming through their areas.

Preparations for meeting any sort of emergency that may arise have been laid by the police. And a supply of tear gas bombs will be distributed among men for subduing any kind of disturbance.

Scrub Tub And Keep Hips Trim

BY ELSIE PIERCE

We have heard a good deal about bathing for beauty. But today we bathe the bathroom and exercise to beauty thereby. Of course, every person in the family washes the bath tub after using it. Even the children are taught at an early age to do this. But the housewife who gets a keen delight out of seeing everything spic and span usually gives the bath tub a daily scrubbing, just for good measure. It's excellent exercise for shoulders, back, abdomen and hips if done correctly. It is better to kneel than to lean over.

Here, if you but knew it, you have the squatting exercise which keeps abdomen and hips trim. First rise on toes, breathing in slowly, then breathe out while you slowly squat. It takes practice to get this down right without losing balance, but it is well worth working for.

Now place left hand flat at bottom of tub and swing right arm around, back and forth, up and down while scrubbing. Stretch as you reach. Don't push, because pushing tends to flatten chest. Pull back hard—that's good for the chest and back muscles.

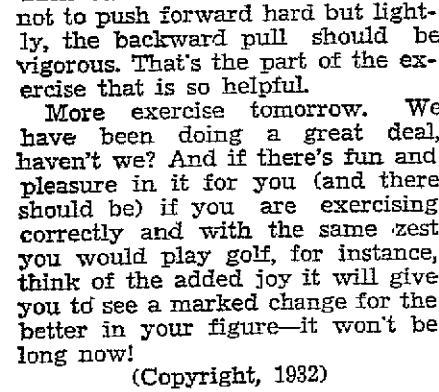

Now try to rise to your feet without using your arms for support. Hard, isn't it? But stand to strengthen muscles of feet and legs. If you must hold on to the tub edge at first for balance, hold on very lightly. Try gradually to get up without holding on to anything.

Floor Scrubbing

Today we'll scrub the floor on hands and knees. Down on knees and hands. Use a circular motion, scrubbing small space at a time. Be sure abdomen is in, always. Spine straight as possible. That position is the least strain to lower back. As you work round and round, you should feel a delightful rhythmic pull and stretch to arm, shoulder, back and side muscles. Remember not to push forward hard but lightly, the backward pull should be vigorous. That's the part of the exercise that is so helpful.

More exercise tomorrow. We have been doing a great deal, haven't we? And if there's fun and pleasure in it for you (and there should be) if you are exercising correctly and with the same zest you would play golf, for instance, think of the added joy it will give you to see a marked change for the better in your figure—it won't be long now!

GOOD TASTE TODAY

A VARIETY OF WEDDING QUESTIONS

My dear Mrs. Post: If a bride has as her attendants three young married women and one unmarried girl, must the husbands of the married attendants be the attendants of the groom? I believe the groom should have the choice of his attendants, regardless of their relationship to the bride's attendants.

Answer: To choose husbands of bride's matrons would be not only unnecessary but utterly improper. Very often when a man and his happen to be the best man friend of the groom and the best girl friend of the bride, one of them usually gives way to the other. Perhaps, if neither has a second best friend who will do as a substitute best man or matron of honor, both might perhaps serve, but with the exception of one brother of the bride who is invariably included, to have ushers who are not the groom's own most intimate friends would be unthinkable. (Unless the groom is a stranger without any friends of his own within traveling distance.)

My dear Mrs. Post: Would it be proper for a bride, who is wearing a traveling dress, to carry an all white bouquet?

Answer: Yes — if it looks well with the color of her dress.

Dear Mrs. Post: Would it be all right to have young women for ushers at an evening church wedding? I have never seen it and yet I would like to have them if it would not be wrong.

Answer: It would be all wrong.

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it necessary for the bride to have her name changed on a deed to property she acquired before marriage? I do not want to run any danger of losing the right to it.

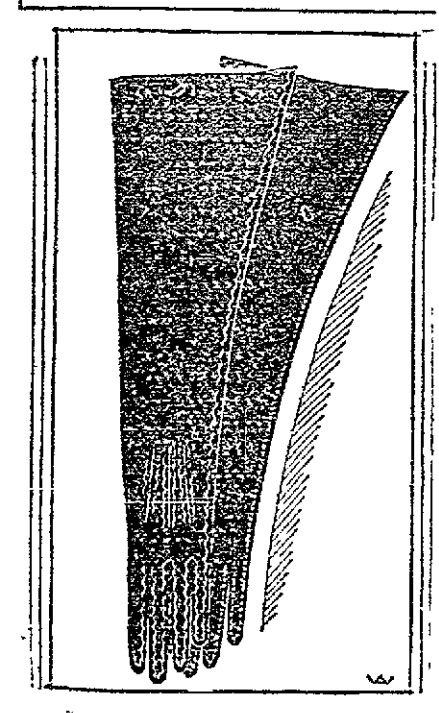

Answer: I do not feel qualified to answer legal questions, but proof of your identity as Mary Smith before you became Mary Smith Jones is sufficient — I believe.

Dear Mrs. Post: We were secretly married and wish to keep it a secret. How can I do this if I wear my ring?

Answer: You can't.

Cards Present Many of Problems Found in Life

BY ELY CULBERTSON

The world of cards presents in miniature many of the problems which face us in everyday life. New situations are constantly arising, and as new methods of defense are developed, those with the greater forces are compelled to invent some course of action that will adequately come with unusual situations. Bids at the Contract can be classed largely as good or bad, depending upon the mental level of your partner and your opponents. You may make what would be a brilliant bid with one partner that would be the height of absurdity with a partner of another temperament.

Recently I played a match with my new partner, Mr. Oswald Jacoby, against two members of the Bridge World team of which Mrs. Culbertson is captain. My opponents were Mr. Louis H. Watson and Mr. Samuel F. Jr. One of the hands in that match was interesting because of the usual bidding which occurred. The hand was:

1-A Forcing bid, after which neither I nor Mr. Jacoby may pass until game is reached.

2-Mr. Jacoby responds with his only four-card suit.

3-Naturally I would not make this bid unless I had sufficient support for the heart bid to make game a near certainty. The rebid of the opponents' suit in this case is designed to show a void. After the hand was over, I remarked to Mr. Jacoby: "This is a bid I would not have made with more than two other Contract players in the world."

4-Again a forced response, Mr. Jacoby, of course, with his trickless bust, can give nothing but minimum responses. However, these bids show how a master player visualizes the possibilities.

Your Birthday

"SCORPIO"

If November 19th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 6:30 a. m. to 7:45 a. m., from 4:30 p. m. to 5:30 p. m. and from 10 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 10 a. m. to 11 a. m. and from 2 p. m. to 3:15 p. m.

Influences operating on November 19th will be conducive to great business activity. Business agreements that will prove worth while financially can be made. Actions will be motivated on this day largely with an idea to attract attention rather than to secure any immediate material gain. Guard against those who would seek to use your name for purposes of publicity.

The child born on this November 19th will appear to have more than the usual childish difficulty in distinguishing between right and wrong. It will not be a malicious or dishonest little one but more often than not it will fall to use good judgment. It must be led to develop on a better sense of values. Direct it with loving and kind advice.

Born on November 19th, you no doubt have great artistic aspirations. You would probably succeed as a writer or in any capacity where you could exercise freely your imagination. Your ability to use words and to blend them and phrase them nicely would stand you in good stead also. Your constructive mind and shrewd powers of analysis would seem to point to a better than average career in the legal profession. Whatever your work, it must be of vital import and of great interest to you in order that you really apply to it your best efforts.

Those born on November 19th are fundamentally honest. Sometimes, though, due to their great desire to line their pocket with gold, they are prone to disregard the dictates of conscience. Fortunately, they seldom wander far from the straight and narrow. They are often highly religious and usually spiritually minded. Often the women born on this date allow conflicting emotions to stir up petty warfare within themselves. They must learn to figure out their own problems by themselves and to be guided by their own ideals rather than by the advice of others.

Successful People Born on November 19th:

- 1-William C. Endicott, lawyer.
- 2-Martin F. Conway, congressman.
- 3-James A. Garfield, 20th President of the U. S.
- 4-Fitzhugh Lee, soldier and governor.
- 5-Mary A. Hallock Foote, artist and author.
- 6-Ralph Peters, president L. I. R. R.

Train Child to Avoid Appearance of Hurry

BY ANGELO PATRI

It is not for nothing that hurry and worry are always tied in the same breath. Hurry is first cousin to worry. One brings the other. The person who is always in a hurry is not a well balanced intelligence. He has allowed one thing to get ahead of another, instead of trying to keep all of them in their places. He has done either too much or too little and done it too early or too late. Hurry won't cure that.

There is a difference between speed and hurry. Speed is controlled swiftness that is accurate and timed to the dot. Hurry is a fluttering haste that may or may not arrive. Speed implies thought and accuracy. Hurry implies neglect and panic. Waste goes with hurry. We who have so much to do cannot afford waste. We must conserve time and energy for both of them are essential to the business of living.

When children have to hurry to get out to school in the morning they are in poor shape to begin the day. I need not tell you about the half eaten breakfast, the clothes tossed on any way, the forgotten things, the irritations and the setbacks of the morning hurry. It all leaves the child breathless and in a state of mental confusion.

The morning start must begin the night before. Things must be laid ready for the morning. The breakfast room must be in order; the first preparations made before lights are turned out at night. A set time for rising and for the breakfast helps. Allow enough time for dressing and eating and a little over for gathering up before starting. Send the children out in a calm rather than in the hurry of storm and the whole day will go better for everybody.

Children are likely to put off things that they ought to do until the last moment. Then they hurry. That kills all benefit the work might have conferred upon them. The seasons ought to be done with thoughtful care; words looked up; references checked; the right tools used; the proper mood set. Then the child gets the full benefit of his labor.

When he suddenly starts up and shouts, "Gee whiz, I forgot. Our monthly theme has to be in tomorrow. Quick. Somebody lend me a pen. Got any theme paper, Bess? Ma, I have to go down to the store for theme paper. How do you know he hasn't any? Then I'll have to go down to Billy's house and borrow some from him. Gee whiz, I forgot

THE STORY OF SUE

By Margery Hale

THE snow had started again. It was drifting along the highways. Now and then the police car skidded and had to be righted. The North road had deep ruts. It wound through a forest.

Every time the car went around a bend Sue leaned forward eagerly, hoping that she would see the car which carried Sally and Hal Prichard. She was positive now that the two runaways were together. She shivered and pulled the blanket closer.

She could see Sally, blue eyes cold as the ice in the brook that bordered the road, red hair burning under the small green hat she had been wearing as her hands clung to the wheel. And the dogged figure of the man who had found an evil sort of pleasure in making the popular Sally Bradley hurry to the spell of his cruel, mad eyes, would taunt her now.

Unless he died on the way.

If he did, there would be more unpleasant publicity for Sally. But it would be a release, too, in a way. Sally was going her way alone, though. Head up, eyes fearless, taking her own life.

Sue wanted to see her, to tell her that she wasn't alone, that all of them were with her.

The car swept around another bend. Faster—faster—through a little town. The chauffeur stopped at the police station. The officers went in.

When they came out one of them was shaking his head. "Word has come from the jail. Someone saw a girl drive away in it. A pretty girl with red hair and blue eyes and green hat. She acted as though she owned it. No one thought there was any question of theft."

"Sally has a princess-sort of air about her," Dr. Raynor agreed. "She could do it. But think of the torture of the thing! Having to obey the whim of someone you hated to the death."

"To the death" The words stood out, clearly.

Sue was sorry that he had said them. But Sally wouldn't. . . . Sally couldn't. . . . She would be too afraid of the man!

Sue could see that Joe Raynor was thinking the same thing. So were the two officials.

"If she should take any action that resulted in injury to Prichard it would be entirely in self-defense," Dr. Raynor said.

One officer eyed him sharply. He didn't answer.

Both Sue and the young physician sensed that the wrong thing had been said.

The car went on. Almost faster now. The next precinct reported that the stolen car, and the girl with the green hat, had gone through not long before.

"We must find them—we must—we must—" Sue kept saying it under her breath until it became a chant and kept tune to the whirr of the motor.

The road was treacherous now. Gullies, ice-filled, had formed. A black speck was far ahead. No other car was in sight.

"Do you suppose we'll get them?" Sue asked Dr. Raynor.

But if they did, what would happen to Sally? Would she be arrested? Sue wondered why she had not thought of that before.

'Gadding' Good for Women Tied to Household Tasks

BY DOROTHY DIX

A man complains to me that his wife is a gadabout. Otherwise he has no fault to find with her. He says that she does not neglect him or her children or her house. She is a good manager. A super-excellent cook. A jolly and amiable companion and when he comes home of an evening there is always a good, hot dinner waiting him.

But every afternoon his wife jams on her hat and steps out for an hour or two. Once a week she and three women friends play contract. Other times she goes to the movies or shopping or makes a visit or two or maybe she just rides around on the street car or in a bus. All perfectly innocent diversion, but the husband feels that somehow this isn't right.

It shocks the ancient tradition that a good wife and mother should never go outside of her own house or desire any interest or amusement outside of the four walls of her home. He says his mother never ran around like this, that she never went anywhere except to church on Sundays and occasionally to visit the sick or go to a funeral. And he wants to know how to nail his wife to her own fireside.

Well, brother, if you take my advice, instead of trying to imprison your wife in your home you will fling the doors wide open and sho her out of them as often as possible. You will encourage her to get off the domestic treadmill whenever she can and wander in the seductive gardens of the department stores or tread the romantic paths of the movies. For that is the best way in the world of breaking the strain of doing the same tasks over and over again every day, every year, that turns so many women into neurotic invalids and makes so many other women peevish and complaining and about as pleasant to live with as a fretful porcupine.

A lot of men have the idea that it is somehow immoral and indecent for a woman not to emulate the snail and carry her house on her back and especially they feel that a woman should never get through with her scrubbing and baking and mending. It was a man poet who wrote that "A man works from sun to sun, but woman's work is never done," which is all hokey.

In these days of ready-made clothes and can openers and vacuum cleaners and automatic heaters and coolers and lights, a woman must be a rotten poor manager who can't get through her work and have some time for herself. And she lacks gumption if she doesn't put in her leisure in getting away from home and the pots and the pans and the children and doing something that will give her a little change and turn her thoughts in a new direction.

Half of the home-keeping women you know are frankly envious of the women who have jobs in the outside world. Yet as a rule, the domestic woman doesn't have to work half as hard as the woman in business. She isn't on her feet all day as she would be if she were a saleswoman. She doesn't have the strain of pounding a typewriter eight hours at a stretch. She doesn't have to put up with the unreasoning of a grouchy boss. She doesn't have to live in continual fear of losing her pay envelope.

The thing that makes her so dissatisfied with her work is its monotony and its lack of human contact. Cooking. Scrubbing. Dusting. Patching. Mending. With no one to exchange a word with except the baby who only says goody-goody. Nothing happening that is stimulating or amusing. Nothing to take her thoughts off herself and her troubles.

No wonder that so many women brood over fancied wrongs until they make mountains out of mole hills. No wonder so many of them spend their time vivisectioning their husbands' faults and shortcomings until they discover villainies in the poor creatures that they never dream they had in their systems. No wonder so many women get so bored with life that they become perpetual fault-finders and naggers.

And the remedy for all of this is so simple. Just a little change. A little gadding. A little diversion. Getting away from home for a few hours and getting something new to talk about and think about. If every housewife could look forward to having even a small part of an afternoon off in which she could dress herself up and go out for a bit of gossip with her cronies or a game of bridge or even to see what the remainder of the world was doing and if while she was washing the dishes and scrubbing the baby's bottles she was looking forward to some pleasure or thinking over the plot of some film she had seen or planning how she was going to make over a dress like that stunning thing she saw in a shop window, it would do more than any other one thing to make her happy and contented and feeling that marriage was worth while.

Moreover, if wives stayed less at home husbands would stay more, because the thing that chiefly sets men roaming is boredom. As long as the wives are interesting companions they don't start out in search of other ladies who understand them and see the points of their jokes and can appreciate their good stories. It is the wives who can talk of nothing but the price of butchers' meat and the children who get on clever husbands' nerves.

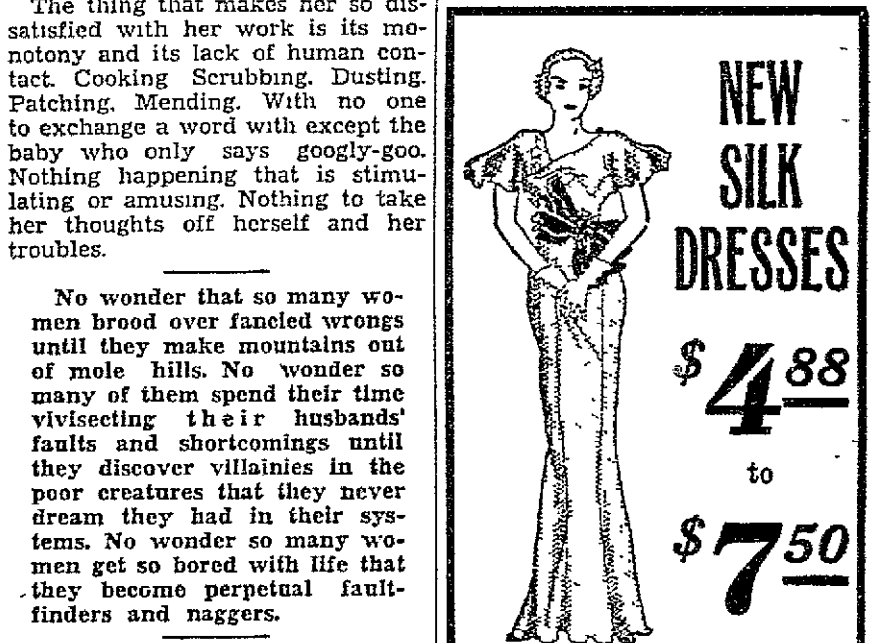

Now home-keeping wives have ever homely wit. The woman who never goes anywhere or sees anything or does anything necessarily becomes dull and tedious. It is the woman who is a gadabout, if you like, and who on her peregrination collects an interesting budget of gossip and news and good stories and who is full of pep and interested in everything that happens, whose husband does not have to leave home for entertainment.

Some day husbands will find out that the best recipe for making a woman a good wife is to keep her amused. Then we will have the domestic millennium.

$22,747 Spent By County for Old Age Pension Report of Year Submitted To Supervisors at Fall Session

Neenah—A total of $22,747 was spent for old age assistance in Winnebago county from Nov. 1, 1931, to Oct. 31, 1932, according to a report filed with the county board, now in session at Oshkosh.

The funds were distributed among 211 persons, 151 of whom are residing in Oshkosh, 24 in the city of Neenah, four in the city of Menasha, and 16 in the village of Omro. The town of Algoma had one case; Black Wolf, 2; Nekim, 2; town of Oshkosh, 4; Foygan, 1; Ashland, 3; Utica, 1; town of Winnebago, 1; and village of Winnebago, 1.

Of the $22,747 total, there was $4,774.17 allowed in state aid, making a total of $17,972.83 that was charged proportionately to the various districts.

Another report submitted to the board revealed that $2,290.96 was spent this year in making necessary repairs on the courthouse and jail buildings.

Fees collected in the office of the county clerk totaled $808.25, it was reported. The principal revenue came from dance hall licenses, $325; and marriage licenses, $210.

The highway committee reported on the revision to widen Highway 41 through the Fox valley from Fond du Lac to Green Bay. The Winnebago county highway committee favors the plan, if funds can be secured without any obligations as to repayment or deductions from any allotments due to the county. The project originally was mentioned as one to be paid from Federal funds.

See Germany In Quest for New Markets

Man Mentioned for Job of Chancellor Is Colonial Expert

Washington — (P) — An indication that Germany may be planning a vigorous bid for colonial markets was seen today by international observers here in reports mentioning Dr. Heinrich Schnee as a possible successor to Franz von Papen at the head of the Berlin Cabinet.

Dr. Schnee is primarily a colonial expert. He is not a pronounced party man and Washington diplomats believe his absence in the far east as a member of the Lytton Manchurian commission during most of the past year of political upheaval led by Hitler may be favorable to his selection.

If President von Hindenburg selects Dr. Schnee to head a new government, political experts will watch, if not for a pronounced effort to regain some of her former colonial possessions, at least for great insistence upon concessions in foreign markets where she may better her economic conditions.

The economic consortium arranged with France and Great Britain for the joint administration of the railways of Poland, Portugal, Rumania, and Iraq, is a decided step in that direction.

Dr. Schnee is 61, was educated at the Universities of Heidelberg, Kiel and Berlin, and was in German colonial service in Bismarck archipelago and German Samoa before he was made governor of German East Africa in 1912.

Served in Africa

During the great war he was in Africa and figured in the guerilla war which a small German army of 5,000 natives offered by 280 Europeans waged relentlessly, in the eastern section of the dark continent while the main issue was being decided in France.

Governor Schnee was with Von Lettow-Vorbeck, the military commander of this little military force when it finally surrendered to the British forces on Nov. 23, 1918.

Dr. Schnee has written extensively on colonial problems and has been a leader in the movement to have Germany's former colonies restored. In his book, "German Colonialism Past and Future" he asks the former enemy powers these questions:

"Do you want our cooperation in the tasks of civilization or do you prefer that we should seek our own ways of carrying out those tasks without regard for you? Do you want us to be co-workers with you for the maintenance of peace in the world, or do you rather perpetuate the rancor and resentment caused by the war and prolonged even more acutely by the peace?"

Demands for Milk Price Reductions Made in Chicago

Three Branches of Industry Refuse to Accept Brunt of Slash

Chicago — (P) — The business of supplying millions of gallons of milk yearly to the nation's second largest city was perturbed today with demands for price reductions.

And from three sides—the producers, the distributors, and the wagon drivers—came refusals to accept the brunt of the cut.

Chicago pays 11 cents a quart of milk, a price of from 3 to 5 cents a quart higher than that maintained in other midwest cities. But members of the Pure Milk association declared, the producer receives considerably less than in other sections.

Members of the Distributors' association announced today that "news of a retail price reduction probably will be forthcoming in a few days." The distributors indicated a belief the reduction would be divided equally among the three branches of the industry.

Upwards of 50,000 families in three states depend for their livelihood upon one branch of the dairy industry that supplies Chicago. There are 20,000 dairies operated in Illinois, Wisconsin and Indiana supplying the milk, 7,000 union men driving milk wagons in Chicago, and thousands of others engaged in distributing the produce.

Pressure on Drivers

Pressure has been brought to bear upon the union for the drivers to accept a $5 a week wage reduction. The drivers were cut from $50 to $45 a week only six months ago and recently refused to accept a $10 reduction.

In comparison to a top price of $2.75 per hundred pounds paid to farmers in 1929, the producers now receive $1.85. Leaders of the Pure Milk association insist the farmers are operating without profit at present and can not take a cut.

William McQueen, an official of the Pure Milk association, said today the organized milk industry in Chicago, with all possible health precautions observed, has given Chicago better service than prevails anywhere else in the midwest. Prices of 6 cents a quart in nearby Rockford and Elgin and 8 cents in Milwaukee and Minneapolis are termed as "ruinous competition."

Leaders among producers, distributors, and union employees agreed some measure must be taken or warfare similar to that between organized and unorganized producers last spring will result. Fifty producers were arrested during one such riot.

At an independent dairy on the west side, meanwhile, the company's business of selling milk at cut rate prices was under the protection of machine guns, gas bombs, and steel walls. Dairymen, however, have decided to meet the competition rather than attempt to fight it.

Former Appleton Girl Becomes Noted Concert Harpsichordist in New York

By Edwina Brause

New York—From pianist in the darkened pit of one of Appleton's film houses to concert harpsichordist upon the brilliantly lighted stage of New York's Steinway Hall is a far cry for even such a determined and talented a young lady as Fern Sherman. She, however, does not consider her career as one of those typical "success" stories wherein the ambitious young artist suffers mightily in the making.

As she modestly told the Post-Crescent correspondent, who went calling at the Hotel Carlyle here, where Miss Sherman now plays the harpsichord nightly, "I've always been an awfully lucky person; always meeting with good fortune." Well, let's see if this Appleton girl is numbered among the country's few outstanding harpsichordists merely because of Lady Fortune.

Do you know what a harpsichord is? Few people do. Harpsichords are not to be found everywhere and their very scarcity explains the confusion as to their construction. Fern Sherman would like to tour the country with her instrument if for no other purpose than to impress upon people that "while it looks like a piano, sounds quite like a harp and has stops like an organ, the harpsichord is neither one nor the other."

Perhaps it can best be compared to a spinet, but Miss Sherman warned, "the spinet is to a harpsichord what a small upright piano is to a concert grand."

Too Large To Carry

She ran her fingers lightly over the double keyboard of her beautiful "Pleyel" instrument and sighed wistfully. "Unfortunately, I can't carry it around under my arm." She looked at its polished bulk speculatively and then threw back the top so that we might see how the keys operate. They are leather projections which pluck the strings instead of the cushioned hammers found in the piano.

Now you know as much of the harpsichord as Miss Sherman did but four years ago. How did it happen, we asked, that Miss Sherman, already a recognized concert pianist, had pledged herself to the cause of the harpsichord?

"That," as they say, calls for a story. The first scene opens with Fern Sherman, a girl of 12, enrolling at the Lawrence College Conservatory, also attended by her older sister, Floy, now Mrs. Robert E. Storm, of Minot, N. D. Imagine Mr. and Mrs. George Sherman's pleasure five years later—seeing their daughter graduate from the Conservatory with the regular college students, while still a junior in the Appleton high school.

Speaking of her achievement, Miss Sherman casually noted, "I was the youngest graduate of the Conservatory at that time, but I continued by studying there another year while finishing my high school course. I'd never played the harpsichord, but I became very much interested in old music under Professor Ludolph Arens." We discovered, incidentally, that Francis Scott Bradford, youthful artist and winner of the Prix de Rome, was one of her high school classmates.

She refused to take her early struggles seriously. "Oh, I've earned my way from the beginning; if that's what you mean." The sprightly blonde young woman laughed, thinking of the things she'd done while still attending the conservatory. Incidents which might be described as hardships by others, has been just fun for her, it seemed.

Played at Movies

"I played in two different movie houses in Appleton. I can't remember their names, but we must have sounded grand. Can you imagine? At one, the orchestra consisted of a flute player, a drummer and myself. Carlos Mullenix, the flutist, is now playing the oboe with George Barrere's Little Symphony Orchestra here in New York."

"Then there was the 'get together' orchestra with which I was pianist for high school and college dances. Yes, you might say that was a little hardship," Miss Sherman chuckled. "Often I felt like dancing myself. Sometimes a kind person would play a few numbers for me."

Miss Fern Sherman, New York, former Appleton girl, noted harpsichord artist, is shown seated before her instrument in New York. She once was a student at Appleton high school and Lawrence Conservatory of Music.

in my place while I had the time of my young life."

A shift of scene and we find Miss Sherman, armed with scholarships, attending the American Conservatory in Chicago and the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, where she played for the late Eugene Yeayre's famous master violin class. She was also artist accompanist for the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra, which Ysaye conducted.

Until that time, remember, the harpsichord was merely a name to the young musician.

In true story-book fashion, Miss Sherman then ventured to New York to launch herself as a concert pianist. But even "the big city" was kind to her, she claimed, thereby snatching from this reporter the opportunity of describing those oft recounted experiences of the ambitious youngsters who come to New York "to make good."

Now the pleasant secret must out. Miss Sherman, as we have called her and as she is known professionally, is not Miss Sherman at all. "Mrs. Harry S. Reinborn," she prettily confessed, when questioned about marriage. A romance with a musical background, you might say, for it was through her work that she first met Harry Reinborn, proprietor of a number of music stores, whom she married seven years ago.

"He wanted me to keep on with my career," she said. "As a matter of fact, it was indirectly through my husband that I began to study the harpsichord. One day I heard a record of harpsichord music in one of his stores. I was thrilled and rushed to phone Steinway to ask if I could buy one. My enthusiasm chilled a little when I found that it would be necessary to import one from Paris."

Gets Modern Copy

After securing the beautiful modern copy of the ancient French type, she studied here under Madame Regina Patoni-Casadesud, harpsichordist with the Society of Ancient Instruments in Paris, and supplemented her lessons with extensive research work.

That was but four years ago. Since then, Miss Sherman—we'll still call her by that name—has given a concert at Steinway hall and participated in a number of cooperative programs, including the broadcast of Musical Americana over the Columbia network last February.

Miss Sherman didn't mind being asked just why she preferred the harpsichord to the piano. "Unfortunately, there is a great lack of enthusiasm among people who haven't heard the harpsichord. They look upon it more or less as a curiosity. That attitude, however, always changes after they've heard its music."

"Anyone, who like myself, loves chamber music, would immediately appreciate it." Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's, Miss Sherman replied. "I enjoy modern music as much as the next one—but don't you see, Mozart, Gluck and Handel meant their compositions for the harpsichord. They used the harpsichord whenever they conducted."

"Besides, there has recently been a general turning back to things of the past. Just as women's clothes are being named after the Empire period, interest in the ancient instruments is reviving."

"I can play any music written up to 1800 on my instrument and within the past few years several concertos have been composed for the harpsichord, notably by de Falla and Poulenc." she offered in vindication of her choice. And as a true artist, Miss Sherman spoke her scorn of those who would misrepresent it.

She was more amused than angry. "Last year the New York Philharmonic played some work of Paul Graener scored for a small orchestra and harpsichord. It made me so mad when they described all the fuss made over their harpsichord, because I knew they didn't have one there. Sure enough the next day one reviewer described the instrument as a 'Steinway piano with harpsichord glands.'"

Fight for Proxies To Decide Destiny Of Aviation Corp.

Battle to be Fought Next Week at Directors' Meeting in New York

Chicago — (P) — Aviation's youngest giant is still trying to find enough time to wind up a fishing trip started almost 20 years ago.

E. L. Cord decided to take a vacation at 20. He and a friend started on a fishing trip which was never finished, as Cord was diverted by a business opportunity. It and succeeding ones have fully occupied his time since and the fishing trip remains unfinished.

Two years ago, Cord was known as a successful young automobile manufacturer with a flair for aviation. Six years before that, he was merely an unknown young automobile salesman.

Today, Cord is drafting final plans for the biggest fight of his career—control of the Aviation corporation, huge holding company owning the majority of stock in several of the biggest air lines in the United States.

The Cord Corp., which he heads, owns 800,000 of the 3,187,386 shares of Aviation corporation stock outstanding. A battle for proxies is now being waged between Cord and the management. Cord objects to the management's plan to purchase a rival company, North American Aviation, Inc., and claims too much is being offered for the stock.

The battle will be fought out at a directors' meeting in New York, Tuesday, Nov. 22.

Cord entered the Aviation corporation picture when that company purchased the Century Air Lines, owned and operated by Cord, and he took stock in the bigger company as payment.

Born in 1894, the son of a Missouri grocer, Cord went to California with his family at a nearly age. While still in high school he engaged in buying second hand cars of a popular make which he overhauled, fitted out with racing bodies and sold to young bloods.

Later he opened and operated one of the first automobile laundries.

When about 20, he thought a vacation was in order. He and a friend started for the mountains on horses. On the way they started to pass a wrecked truck.

Cord stopped and completed a deal for the truck and cargo. He ran this truck for a time, hauling supplies in and out of Death Valley.

At 25 he came to Chicago and obtained a job selling automobiles for a little known company. He had a drawing account of $35 a week. His aggressiveness carried his agency to prominence and Cord became a distributor.

In 1924, he took charge of the Auburn Automobile company's plant at Auburn, Ind. The company's consolidated balance sheet as of Aug. 31, 1932, showed current assets of $11,855,891 with liabilities of $597,834.

another necessity to the things under monopoly control.

Some Jugoslavs hope the monopoly will clear up the price situation which made a London penny paper cost 12 cents, with other English and American periodicals proportionately high.

Other observers, however, regard the move as presaging a tighter censorship. They point out that a foreign paper carrying items disagreeable to the Belgrade government can be confiscated more easily by the monopoly than by the police.

It costs $300 per ton a year to haul an elevated railway car.

Delay Likely In Congress On Waterway

Opposition May Be Heavy
Enough to Bar Action
During Short Session

Washington—(P)—Serious doubts have arisen in the minds of supporters of the St. Lawrence waterway treaty over the prospects for its consideration at the forthcoming session of congress in view of the opposition it has drawn.

Although they still are talking hopefully, friends of the agreement signed by the United States and Canada last July realize that it is difficult to obtain consideration for a controversial subject in a short session of congress due to the pressure of routine legislation.

If the treaty should fail to reach a vote at the coming session, its future fate would depend largely upon the attitude of Franklin D. Roosevelt, whose term as president begins the day the session ends.

Friends of the project hoped to obtain some indication of Roosevelt's views from the testimony of Frank P. Walsh, chairman of the New York Power Authority, before the senate foreign relations subcommittee that is now considering the treaty. He was not expected to appear until hearings resume after Thanksgiving.

Four days of hearings this week have shown well developed antipathy for the project among railroad interests, Great Lakes shippers, and eastern seaboard business circles. The fate of the treaty largely depends upon whether this opposition is purely local, or general enough to be heard forcefully in the senate.

Borah's Viewpoint
This view was expressed by Chairman Borah of the foreign relations committee, who, in discussing the treaty's prospects, said today:

"We can't take up anything in a short session if there is any real opposition in the senate. I don't know how much of this local opposition will be reflected in the senate, however."

Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) indicated that friends of the treaty are not underestimating the opposition. He said:

"It is obvious there is a very serious battle involved which is bound to take time."

Senator Walsh (D., Mont.), another treaty supporter, forecast the treaty would be considered at the short session but would not predict the outcome. He said many senators had not had a chance to consider the subject.

"This opposition has always been anticipated," Walsh said. "Nothing has developed so far that was not to be expected. It was quite reasonable to assume that the shipping interests of New York and Philadelphia and the railroads centering in these cities would be opposed to it."

Laymen from nine Appleton churches are making plans for observation of a layman's missionary Sunday here on Dec. 2 at the Y. M. C. A. The speaker will be Dr. D. Brewer Eddy.

About 100 men are expected to attend the meeting. They will be from Emmanuel Evangelical, Baptist, All Saints, Presbyterian, Methodist, Congregational, Trinity English Lutheran, St. John and Reformed churches.

Dr. Eddy, a graduate of Yale and Wesleyan in Connecticut, and a former Oxford student, has traveled extensively through Asia and Europe. He is author of several books and articles and a well known speaker. The subject of his talk here has not been announced.

Dr. Eddy is a brother of Sherwood Eddy, long connected with Y. M. C. A. work in Asia and recently conducting tours through Europe.

standing ball all season. Wolfe was considered the best wingman in the loop and Muller as a logical second choice.

Tillman, Appleton, and Riese, Oshkosh, were considered the tackles because they were big, rangy boys, played consistent ball and each possessed the ability to knife through and block punts and harness tacklers. Both played on fair teams but with mediocre assistance were outstanding.

Centers at Guard
Lutke of West and Gores of Fond du Lac were named the guards. The former was a center and converted into a guard. The same was true of Gores; their work being exceptional but overshadowed by Grau. However, they couldn't be passed up and, therefore, were placed at guards, where there appeared to be a dearth of good material.

Carl Grau of Sheboygan was a unanimous choice at center. He performed at the post for three years and was picked as an all conference performer last season. He played exceptional ball as a roving center giving Sheboygan much of its line power.

In the back field Davey of Sheboygan was picked because he could run, pass and kick and handled his squad very well. Duclos of West went to a halfback berth because of his ability to carry the ball, block well and because of defensive play. The other halfback named was Erdman, West Green Bay, a youngster rather untried but considered to be the standard as a blocking half. The coaches recognized the fact that all backfields need a good blocker and therefore selected Erdman over several other good ball carriers.

Klika Is Fullback
Al Klika of East was named fullback without a dissenting vote. He was a strong plunger, a deadly tackler and generally an all around back who could advance the ball almost any way, back up a line and was possessed of football sense.

Cleon Walcott, Sheboygan Press sports editor also picked a team several days ago, naming a first, second and third squad. His selections follow:

Coaches Talk Basketball
Other business transacted by the mentors last night concerned basketball. Oshkosh, Manitowoc, East Green Bay and Appleton will have second teams and probably will play a few games.

Appleton and Oshkosh talked over a practice game on Dec. 2 at Oshkosh but did not complete arrangements. The 1931-32 rules were

Badgers Complete Drills
For Their Final Game

MADISON.—(AP)—The practice fields which surround Camp Randall stadium saw use for the last time this year when the Wisconsin Badgers stepped through their paces in preparation for the Chicago game.

Grown hard as flint from recent frosts, the turf was in no condition for use as a scrimmage ground but Coach Clarence Spears kept the Badgers out-of-doors long enough to let them become acclimated to the cold weather.

The real workout of the day was held in the field house. Like the previous practices this week the

Who Is 1-2 Inches Taller Than He

New York.—(AP)—A couple of behemoths, Primo Carnera and Jose Santa, will try to amuse the spectators in Madison Square Garden tonight in what has been described in the advance notices as a boxing contest.

Primo's 261 pounds will keep intact his record of always outweighing his opponent but the vast Venetian will have to make one astonishing physical concession. At six feet six and one-half inches he'll have to look up to the Portuguese whose mean altitude is six feet eight inches. Santa weighs 250 pounds.

The match is scheduled for 10 rounds but if it goes that far there will be plenty of red faces among the experts. They're picking Primo to win early.

Five preliminaries of six rounds each will precede the main collision with pairings as follows: Jack Dorval, Boston, vs. Walter Cobb, Baltimore; Arthur Buttick, New York, vs. Tony Shucro, Boston; Jack Redman, South Bend, Ind., vs. Andy Mitchell, New York; Juanito Olague, Spain, vs. Charley Massara, New York; Tommy Walsh, New York, vs. Bob Olin, New York. All are heavyweights.

Punts and Passes

Chicago.—On the theory that turn about is fair play, the University of Chicago football squad is going to give "Doc" Spears, Wisconsin coach a "going away" present before Saturday's game. Chicago's last three opponents, Illinois, Purdue and Michigan, have honored A. A. Stagg, Maroon coach, with such gifts and Chicago lost all three games. When they heard Wisconsin intended to continue the custom the players decided that they must give Spears something to even-up on the jinx.

Cambridge, Mass.—Old man depression has proved entirely tough for one of Harvard's old football customs, that of burning the tackling dummy before the last game. Instead of being consigned to the flames, the dummy went into storage yesterday. "It would be extravagant with attendance falling off the way it has," athletic association officials explained.

Cleveland.—Army scouts are going to kill two birds with one stone this week. They've ordered a couple of good seats behind the goal posts for the Notre Dame-Navy game. The cadets play Notre Dame-Nov. 26 and Navy Dec. 3.

New York.—The Columbia coaches' team which has been opposing the varsity in practice for some weeks is now operating with a makeshift lineup. Two members of the staff, Paul Liston and Joe Stanczyk, are on the sidelines with injuries suffered in scrimmages with the enthusiastic varsity.

Atlanta, Ga.—Buster Mott may be the only experienced player in Georgia's lineup when the Bulldogs face Auburn tomorrow. Tentatively the other three places have been awarded to Jack Griffith, Buck Chapman and Joe Crouch, all sophomores.

Ann Arbor, Mich.—Coach Harry Kipke was none too cheerful as his unbeaten Michigan eleven left for Minneapolis to play Minnesota. A 7 to 6 victory, he said, was about the best he could hope for. He failed to state what might be the worst he expected.

Cleveland.—"Wherever we go," moans Hunk Anderson of Notre Dame, "we're classed as a great team and we have no reason to be called great. We showed against Pitt that we are vulnerable. Kansas had us bottled up all afternoon. Against Northwestern our running attack was stopped again. I only hope our players are smart enough to realize how terrible our offense has been."

accepted as provided by the Wisconsin Interscholastic Athletic Association, and the list of officials were gone over and checked. The two schools not represented were Fond du Lac and Marinette.

Each One Dangerous
Notre Dame has a list of 140 players to be worked on a football field—70 on either side of the line.

Badgers drilled on defense, fearful of Chicago's plays despite the Maroons' mediocre season. The freshman provided the variety with much grief by working Chicago plays for long gains time and again. During the entire season the Badgers have gone into most every game as underdogs and have kicked over the dope bucket to win or earn close decisions. Saturday, the Badgers will be favorites to win but at a great disadvantage from a psychological standpoint. For Alonzo A. Stagg, finishing 41 years as a Chicago coach, the game may provide a source of satisfaction if the maroons are keyed to the proper pitch.

Coach Spears apparently is stringing along with a revised lineup. The start of the game will probably find Bill Koenig at center, Capt. Kabat and Mario Pacetti at guards, George Thurner and Frank Molnar at tackles, John Schneller and George Deanovich at ends, "Mickey" McGuire and Joe Linfor at halfbacks, Nello Pacetti at quarter and Clair Strain at fullback.

Injuries received in the Minnesota game preclude starting Hal Smith at fullback, Dave Tobias at tackle and Dick Haworth at end but they are deemed in sufficiently good form to see some action during the day.

O. K. Taxis lost two games to the F. O. E. team in the Eagles league but managed to hold the loop lead by two games when the Graef Lumber in second place failed to improve their position. The Taxis sneaked through a win the first game with J. Hebelers' 181 but lost the second because of low scores and because J. Moll of the F. O. E. rolled a 322. The third game went to the F. O. E. with 186 by Moll.

The F. O. E. wins sent them into a tie for second with Graef Lumber who lost two to the Modern Cleaners. Only three cleaners rolled but Welhouse hit 182 in the first game and 217 in the third and the team topped.

Koch Glasses didn't go so hot against the Sell Special and lost two games. The Glasses victory was by a 226 by Her Strutz in the third game.

Stark Hotels whitewashed the Eagle Specials who had only three better scores. Stark hit 213 in the first hotel win, Graefers 171 in the second and Busbey 174 in the third.

Carl Klandrud New
Rapids High Coach

Wisconsin Rapids.—(AP)—Carl Klandrud, director of athletics and head coach at the River State Teachers' college for the last four years, will take over his new duties here Monday as athletic coach at Lincoln high school.

Klandrud signed a two year contract to take over the coaching job at Lincoln high which was held until two months ago by Leo Huber who resigned because of ill health. He graduated from the River State Teachers' college, Klandrud coached at Marshfield high school teams from 1926 to 1928, and coached the previous three years at River Falls high school. He produced a championship football team at Marshfield and his basketball teams also were strong aggregations.

In addition to his coaching duties, Klandrud will teach physiology and assist in summer playground work at Lincoln high.

Eleven Gophers in Their Final Game

Minneapolis.—(AP)—A check of the records revealed today that James Dennerly of Duluth, will be eligible for the 1933 football team at the University of Minnesota. He will be the eleventh veteran lost for next year's Gophers.

Dennerly played just enough in 1930 to make him ineligible for further Big Ten competition. He is a guard.

The other Gophers who will play their final college game Saturday against Michigan are Captain Walter Hass, Jack Manders, Jerry Griffin, Sam Swartz, Bradbury Robinson, Marvin Dillner, Kenneth Gay, Eulo Koski, Marshall Wells and Elmer Apmann.

Chicago Cuts Price
Of Last Game Ducats

Chicago.—(AP)—The University of Chicago will put on sale 10,000 seats for the Maroons' final game of the football season with Wisconsin tomorrow, at $1 each. The reduction sets a new all-time low for the Big Ten. The seats are in the end stand, the cost of sideline seats remaining at $1.50.

The little lad is starting out young. But he doesn't intend growing up to place bets on the horses. He's going to be a groom, if his father, Jim, Carpenter, one of the country's noted horsemen, has anything to do with it. The lad is Peter Carpenter, and the boss is "Pancho," of the Del Monte, Calif., stables.

Big Ten Rings
Down Curtain on
'32 Grid SeasonStagg Ends Career in Conference; Title Will Be Settled

BY WILLIAM WEEKES
(Associated Press Sports Writer)
CHICAGO.—(AP)—The Western conference will end its 1932 football championship season tomorrow. Coach A. A. Stagg of the university of Chicago will be ending his 41 year association with the Big Ten, the title will be disposed of, and certain knick-knacks will find resting places for another year.

The championship angle crops up in two games. First, at Minneapolis, Michigan will tackle Minnesota, seeking its sixth straight triumph and an undisputed claim to the title. Purdue, unbeaten but tied, meets Indiana at Lafayette, and by winning over the Hoosiers, could win the championship in the event Minnesota upsets Michigan.

A tie game at Minneapolis and a Purdue triumph would leave the Wolverines and Boilermakers sharing the honors.

Stagg Versus Spears
At Chicago, Stagg will send his Maroon warriors out against Wisconsin, the big pleasant surprise of the Big Ten season. It will be the 391st game Stagg has sent his men out on the field, and probably will be the last at Chicago, for he is to be retired at the end of the college year, the dope says Wisconsin should win.

The knick-knacks will be involved in three games. At the head of the list is the Michigan-Minnesota struggle over the "little brown jug"—a trophy of wood, the original piece of crockery. Michigan is favored to retain the ancient trophy.

Purdue and Indiana will fight for the "old oaken bucket," now resting in the Boilermaker trophy case. On form Purdue should win, with Indiana putting up as much of a struggle as Minnesota is expected to make against Michigan.

Ohio State and Illinois, old rivals and providers of upsets, will seek possession of a wood model of a turtle called "Illinuck," a combination of "Illini" and "Buckeye." Another rousing battle is the prospect, with Ohio holding the edge. Northwestern, crippled and at the end of its unhappy season since 1923, will take on Iowa at Evanston. Without Pug Renner, the leading Wildcat cripple, the improved Iowans rate an almost even chance.

High School Girls to Entertain Gridders

The annual banquet for the Appleton high school football squad, sponsored by the Girls' Athletic Association, will be held at Hotel Appleton, Monday evening. Percy Clapp, head football coach at Lawrence college, will be the principal speaker. Next year's captain will be elected.

Other guests will include Superintendent B. J. Rofian, H. H. Helbie, principal of Appleton high school, Werner Witte, Myrlon Selms, Leiland Delforge, and Coach Joseph Shields.

Committees in charge of arrangements are Dorothy Sellers and Ruth Kapp, invitation and place cards; and Adrienne Reidner, Gladys Welsch, Eldine Strutz, and Betty Buchanan, decorations. Servers will be Phyllis Schneider, Bertha Barry, Marie Plamann, Olive Werner, and Helen Doerfler.

Donald Gerlach will furnish piano music.

Luke Ebel Wins
From Hoerning
In Second FrameSmall House Indicates Legion Probably Will Abandon Programs

By Gordon R. McIntyre
SOMETHING like about 250 persons last night saw Oney Johnston post of the American Legion stage its monthly fight card—and probably its last this season. Although no official announcement yet has been made the fact the vets ran into red ink for the second time in two months probably means the end of the simon pure sport here.

There has been some talk of a charity program next month but right now the veterans need the charity to break even on recent programs.

Last night's card was entertaining and interesting. It showed some mighty fine leather tossing and two technical knockouts. But the crowd wasn't very enthusiastic and perhaps folks have seen enough boxing for a while.

Ebel K. O.s Hoerning
Luke Ebel, Manitowoc, beat Ed Hoerning, New London, in the windup. Ebel was given a technical knockout verdict when referee Finkle Mitchell stopped the fight.

The first round went to Hoerning who flattened Ebel with a right to the button a few seconds before the bell. The jolt seemed to make Luke angry and after landing twice on Hoerning's chin with blows that sagged the New London boy's knees, he floored Hoerning for a nine count and cut his left eye.

Hoerning tried to continue but took an awful lot of punishment and was floored again. He was staggering up when Mitchell reached ten and Pink stopped the go because Hoerning appeared hardly able to continue.

The semi windup saw Freddie Chynewith, Manitowoc use Leo Hirschman, Denmark, for a punching bag and on a decision in three rounds. Chynewith smacked away at Leo during the first round when the latter stepped in. In the second and third rounds Freddie punched his head off and although he tossed everything he could throw, Hirschman stayed around until the end. It was a good punching workout for the shock boys.

Lyle Drake of Waupaca came back to the local ring and showed that he should quit the amateur racket for once and all. He absorbed enough punishment about the head in the second and third frames from the fists of one Cy Goodrich to have almost anyone else cutting paper dolls.

Drake Takes Beating
Drake isn't going to stand swatting like that forever and it he's wise he'll hang up the gloves. He was a chopping block for his opponent most of the time. In the first frame he showed fairly well but was slapping and cuffing. In the second round a solar plexus blow stopped him for a nine count. He recovered well enough but the jarring he took about the head in the third isn't shaken off in a day or two.

Al Cook, a Menominee Indian brave sought to make himself known in the amateur racket in the valley and did as a game little fellow who takes a lot of hammering and continues to smile and comes back for more. He lost a decision to Bobby Fadner, Fond du Lac.

The boys started cautiously, the Indian wearing a pair of boxing shoes that must have been three sizes to large, showing plenty of speed and ability. However, he was outclassed by Fadner, one of the neatest boxers ever to appear locally.

The second and third rounds saw Fadner cutting the Indian's face to ribbons, saw Cook spilling a terrible amount of blood but always smiling—and always dangerous. Fadner was too smart, however, and Cook was a badly beaten boy. He made a gallant effort to over-

Chaff 'n Chatter

By Gordon R. McIntyre

THERE'S a little story by Bill Braucher of NEA service on Doc Spears, Wisconsin grid coach, who Saturday will send his team out against Chicago in the last game of the Big Ten season. Spears has made a record for himself at Wisconsin and no one can tell about him better than Braucher.

In the five years during which Dr. "Fat" Spears coached football teams at the University of Minnesota, the Gophers never lost a game to Wisconsin. Now, that Dr. "Fat" Spears is coaching at Wisconsin, maybe the Gophers will not win any more games from the Badgers.

Certainly the doctor got a good start toward turning the tables when his smart Badger eleven set Minnesota back recently, 20 to 13. "Spears is back," was the talk that went around the Big Ten just before the present season opened, "and you never can tell what will happen when a Spears team takes the field." It's true—you never can. Not only that, but all who had any doubts that Spears is back have them removed. The doctor's team has lost just one game this year, and that to Purdue by a score of 7 to 6.

But So Different!

The Wisconsin team he put on the field this year, after he had been absent for a couple of years at Oregon, was almost the same club, so far as personnel was concerned, as the team that went nowhere last year. The difference was that this year's team seems to know what it's all about. It is a fine blocking team with a strong line, and is well grounded in what the boys call the fundamentals.

The margin by which Wisconsin lost that thriller to Purdue was a dropped forward pass near the goal line. And that kind of thing can happen to anybody.

The doctor is one of the Keweenaw, Ill., boys who made good in the big city. In high school he was just one of those fellows who stand next to the center and punch an aperture in the opposing beef through which many a halfback galloped to glory.

He was the same at Dartmouth, except that he won the honor of being named All-America guard by Walter Camp in two of the three years he played.

He was one of the first of the modern "running guards," which means that he drew back out of the line to run interference for the backfield on flank attacks.

The "Trouble Shooter"

He was an excellent blocker himself, and his Wisconsin team this year shows that he has been able to pass on his talents to others.

Spears started coaching at Dartmouth shortly after the war, with Major Cavanaugh, and the major was a pretty good man from whom to learn. When Cavanaugh left, Spears succeeded to the megaphone. Dartmouth, which had been wondering when another great team was coming along, immediately found itself with one on its hands. When Spears left for a job at West Virginia, New England football people were not noticed lamenting in the public places.

West Virginia was in the doldrums. But this "trouble shooter" of football soon had the boys on their feet, and his Mountaineer teams of 1923-'24 were the scourge of the countryside.

Goucher Convalesces

He went to Minnesota in 1925 to apply his rostrums to a sick Gopher. And the Gophers got so well that it won 26 games against nine lost and three tied in the five years of his stewardship.

Next he applied his medicine to Oregon's languishing eleven, with the same sort of success. In his two years there, his teams won 13, lost four and were tied twice. Wisconsin is said to have offered the doctor $10,000 per year for treatments of his magic shift and football fundamentals. So he just packed up and came back to the Big Ten this year. And, as you may have noticed, he really is back.

Kaws Forfeit 5
Football GamesVoluntarily Give Up Claim
To Contests in Which Captain Played

Kaukauna high school authorities last night voluntarily forfeited the five football games in which William Kuchelmeister, captain, played this fall while over 20 years of age and in violation of the Wisconsin Interscholastic and Northwestern Wisconsin conference rules. The forfeiture was made at a meeting of N. E. W. officers at Green Bay and was accepted by the board. The games were with Sturgeon Bay, Shawano, West DePere, Two Rivers and Oconto, and league standings were ordered changed accordingly. The matter now is dropped, according to officials of the league and no other action is contemplated.

East DePere and Shawano tie for the title with the change in standings. Previously the teams were tied with Kaukauna.

A story which appeared in the Appleton Post-Crescent last night the night previous, supposedly emanating from Kewaunee and from Supt. R. H. Lacking of Kewaunee high school, president of the conference, erred in a statement about the Kaws.

The story stated "There is little doubt but that Kaukauna officials used the captain in the lineup knowing that he was beyond age." Checking back this morning it was found that the word "not" had been omitted from the sentence in the Green Bay story, which should have read "used this captain not knowing he was beyond the age as set by the regulations."

James P. Cavanaugh, superintendent of schools, Olin G. Dwyer, principal of the high school and Paul E. Little, athletic coach represented Kaukauna at the meeting.

Phone Company Will Improve Kaukauna Line

Poles to be Removed Along Wisconsin-ave From Lawe to Desnoyer-sts

Kaukauna—Officials of the Wisconsin Telephone Co. are considering an improvement program for the Kaukauna line. The program is expected to start about Jan. 1 and the complete program will be outlined with the transfer of the cable crossing the Fox river near the Lawe-st bridge. Workmen of the company expect to complete the transfer this week. The cable crosses the canal of the river underground and crosses the fairrace on poles. The section of cable crossing the fairrace is being transferred into tile in the Lawe-st bridge. The tile was placed in the bridge by contractors in charge of the bridge construction. Permission of the city council to occupy the bridge for the transfer was given to the Telephone Co. last year.

Percy Keene, foreman of the state crew, is directing the work on the bridge. Douglas Nelson was foreman of the crew which recently completed transfer of a considerable amount of cable on Grignon and Tobacco-sts.

With the removal of the Telephone Co. lines from Wisconsin-ave the poles and lines of the Kaukauna Electric department will remain on the street. It is expected that these will be removed if ornamental lights are installed.

When CHILDREN

- don't gain weight
- don't grow strong
- don't keep well

The stomach is not to blame when a child is finicky about food. Nor is every sluggish boy or boy constipated. Instead of a lot of medicine, give a little pure syrup of figs. You'll see a change in twenty-four hours! In a couple of weeks, your youngster will have the appetite of a young animal!

It's true, mothers, for it's Nature. California syrup of figs is bottled health for the little ones.

For Any Sluggish Child

Pale, sickly children whose tongues are always coated, and who are never really hungry, are suffering from stasis. That means a sluggish colon, a colon clogged with waste. They need the "California treatment." You can give this treatment yourself, any time, anywhere; it's simple. Every drugstore has California syrup of figs all bottled, with full directions for a babe of two years or child in his teens. Its delicious taste makes it delightful to use; no child ever tired of it.

Start tonight, giving enough to cleanse the colon of every bit of poisonous waste. Then a spoonful or so, every other day, until the child's appetite, color, weight, and general health tell you all sluggishness or constipation has been conquered.

When a cold or severe sickness has sapped a child's strength and stamina, remember, California syrup of figs.

IMPORTANT!

If you want to get real results, get the real California syrup of figs. Do not accept any bottle which does not say CALIFORNIA Syrup of Figs.

CHINA COUNTS NOSES

Shanghai—The conflict with Japan did not seem to diminish China's millions of population to any great extent. The Ministry of the Interior in Nanking has recently completed a census which it claims is the most accurate ever made in China. China's population, including Manchuria, Mongolia and Tibet totals 474,787,368. Previous counts have varied from 350,000,000 to 500,000,000.

Urge Farmers to Have Soils Tested in Fall

In these days, when a penny saved is a penny earned, there are very good reasons for testing soil before seeding it to alfalfa, according to Gustav H. Sell, county agent. Samples of soil will be taken and tested on many farms this fall and winter. This will avoid risking the price of alfalfa seed and the cost of inoculation and labor on a piece of ground that, from the start, is lacking in the fertilizing elements necessary for the crop's success.

Lack of lime, phosphate, or potash are common causes of alfalfa failures. Soil may not need lime or phosphate, but it may need potash. By knowing just what is lacking, we will not waste money on fertilizers that are not needed and can avoid the losses caused from crop failure by supplying the fertility that is actually needed.

This fall and during the winter months, soil samples may be taken from many Outagamie-co fields on which alfalfa is being planned and the samples sent to the county agent's office where the necessary tests will be made and the findings returned. Armed with this information, plans can be made early in the winter for the proper soil treatments, if any are required.

By testing the alfalfa soil now, time and money and disappointment may be saved later, experience shows.

Building Arctic Marker Hard Task for Workers

Ann Arbor, Mich. (AP)—Building monuments to Arctic explorers at the scene of their exploits is no easy task, according to Prof. Ralph L. Belknap, of the University of Michigan.

Professor Belknap was engineer in charge of construction of a 50-foot granite shaft built on the heights of Cape York in Greenland. One angle of the triangular monument points to the North pole.

ment may be saved later, experience shows.

reached in 1909 by Admiral Peary, in whose honor the shaft was built. Ten men camped 1,450 feet above sea level in the lee of an ice cap to build the monument. Belknap relates. The shaft was sunk three feet to bed rock and materials were hauled up the mountain side. The last day ice was melted to make water for the masonry.

NEEDS NO BATTERIES

A batteryless flashlight has been put on the market. It has a small dynamo in its base. A few turns of the base produces enough energy to set the bulb glowing and, when the light diminishes, all one has to do is to turn the base again.

COFFEE HAS

No other coffee is roasted the same way... Controlled Roasting is Hills Bros' patented process

Full savory goodness of the coffee-berries developed by roasting "a little at a time," instead of in bulk

GROUND RIGHT TO TASTE RIGHT
Hills Bros. Coffee is correctly ground for best results by drip process or any other method.

No can of Hills Bros. Coffee will ever "go stale." The vacuum can keeps it FRESH ALWAYS!

The instant Hills Bros. Coffee touches your lips, you know why it is such a tremendous favorite. For you're tasting the flavor of flavors! No other coffee has such satisfying goodness... such delicious, mellow smoothness.

That's because Hills Bros. is roasted a little at a time... evenly, continuously, by the patented Controlled Roasting process. Other coffees are roasted in bulk.

Controlled Roasting is the perfect way to roast! For it offers positive protection against under-roasting and over-roasting. But ordinary, bulk methods don't. Every berry in Hills Bros.' blend is done to the exact degree necessary to develop the finest flavor!

Hills Bros. Coffee is vacuum-packed, and can't go stale. The vacuum process of packing coffee is the only method that fully preserves coffee freshness — the air is removed from the can and kept out. It was originated by Hills Bros. over thirty years ago. There is no magic about a vacuum can — it will not make poor coffee good, but it will keep good coffee fresh.

Drink some Hills Bros. Coffee. By the time you've finished the cup, you'll know a contentment and satisfaction that no other can give! Order some today by name, and look for the Arab trade-mark on the can.

When you're
Healthy, you're happy

THINK back over the last six months. The days that you were the happiest were days when health was at the peak. You can enjoy more sunshiny days. It's easier than you think.

Poor health is so often due to common constipation. Yet this condition can be banished from your life by simply eating a delicious cereal.

Laboratory investigations have proved that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to further assist elimination. ALL-BRAN is also twice as rich in iron as an equal weight of beef liver.

This "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is similar to that in leafy vegetables. Within the body, it absorbs moisture, and gently helps to clear the system of wastes. Biological tests have demonstrated that it is mild in action.

Two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. With each meal in chronic cases. If not relieved this way, consult your doctor.

Isn't this pleasant "cereal way" better than taking pills and drugs — so often harmful? Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

When you're healthy, you're happy
"How you feel — and how well you look — depends largely upon the food you eat. Be sure your diet is balanced — with sufficient 'bulk' to promote regularity."

DIVINITY SALAD

1 No. 2 can Joannes Quality Fruits for Salad
1 pkg. Joannes Quality Lemon Jelly Powder.
1/2 pint Whipping Cream.
1/4 cup Chopped Nuts.
1-3 cup Joannes Quality Mayonnaise Dressing.

Drain the juice from the fruit thoroughly. Place fruit juice in 1/2 pint measuring cup and fill the cup with water. Pour into a sauce pan and bring to a boil, then add the jelly powder, stirring until dissolved. Set away to cool. Cut the fruit in small pieces, reserving 1/4 cup for garnishing. Whip 1/2 cup of Cream until stiff and add the mayonnaise dressing, nuts and fruit. Add the slightly thickened gelatin mixture. Pour at once into a mold and set in the refrigerator to harden. Unmold and garnish with the remainder of the cream whipped until stiff and slightly sweetened, and the pieces of fruit reserved for this purpose. Will give from six to eight servings.

BEGIN HERE TODAY MONA MORAN, receptionist in a Wall Street law office, goes with her childhood sweetheart, STEVE SACCARELLI, to a popular supper resort, the Halcyon Club. Mona supports her invalid father, mother, little sister, KITTY, and ne'er-do-well brother, BUD. Steve has been mysteriously absent for three years. He has returned, well-dressed and prosperous. With no thought of propriety, he has ordered a gown and wrap sent to Mona which, after much indecision, she wears. At the office that day Mona has met BARRY TOWNSEND, rich and socially prominent, but refused his invitation to dine with him. Bud Moran comes to the Halcyon Club to see BUCK HA KINS, the proprietor, who has underworld connections. Mona sees her brother and fears he is associating with gamblers. Steve tries to quiet her fears. LOTTIE CARR, fashion model, dismisses her escort and joins Mona and Steve. Then Steve's business partner arrives. He proves to be Barry Townsend. Barry tells Mona how Steve, years before, had befriended him, how together they sailed for South America and have been operating a diamond mine that Townsend inherited. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XI FOR the rest of the evening Mona was all glee. She had determined to put her worries aside and not spoil Steve's party. During a dance with him she slipped away to telephone her home. Bud answered and his voice was casual, satisfying. Yes, he'd been working. Sure, he was in for the night. What? Oh, eating a sandwich. Yeah. Be home a little later, would she? Well, that was okay. He'd leave a light. Mona turned away from the telephone relieved Bud was home and apparently staying there. His voice had seemed as innocent as Kitty's must have. The four young people danced at the Club Morgan, exchanging partners with gay, flattering banter that made each girl feel certain that secretly each man would have preferred her to the other. Then they drove swiftly through the park in Steve's car to the latest and smartest club in Harlem and danced again. "More like home, eh?" Barry laughed over his shoulder at Steve, as a gorgeous cafe au lait dancer in pink, a lithe, arresting figure, swung by. They ate again—coffee, golden brown, with toast and scrambled eggs. Suddenly Barry looked up to exclaim, "This is too late for you!" He was gazing at Mona for Lottie, apparently, did not strike him as a martyr to the nine o'clock appearance at work. "Tell you what I'll do! I'll use my pull at the office to get the day off for you!" "Sh!" Mona whispered. They had not told Steve that they had met at Garrettson's. "That's right," muttered Barry. He and Mona both smiled. This was the second secret they had shared. For both of them knew that, of the two, Mona's influence at Garrettson's office was greater than the young man's. In the front seat of the car, her golden head frankly on Steve's shoulder, Lottie opened her eyes to announce that old Pilgrim himself couldn't get her to appear on duty at his shop before 3 p. m. "And maybe I won't be there then!" she added. "They'll think I'm at the fashion show and the fashion show will think I'm at the shop. All's well for little Lottie!" "Of course they wouldn't think of telephoning," suggested Steve, giving her head a good-natured push. "They couldn't check up on you, I suppose." "I take that chance," Lottie answered. Mona noted, not without a pang, that Steve and Lottie had reached a state of complete camaraderie. "You're good, Lottie," she murmured. "Good?" echoed the other girl, setting her wrap about her. "I've got to be good! There hasn't been a figure like mine at Pilgrim's since Mona left us." "And there won't be until she goes back!" Steve agreed firmly. Mona's heart leaped. Instantly she was ashamed of begrudging Lottie a conquest. Certainly Lottie was generous enough. They dropped Lottie in front of her apartment house in the 80's amid effusive interchange of banter, telephone numbers and good-nights. Barry left them at the Park avenue address. He was spending the night at the apartment to which both young men referred as "Steve's place." Mona was sitting beside Steve now. Her own address was hardly 10 blocks away and he drove slowly. "Steve, I'm sending these things back tomorrow." "We'll talk that over later, honey. What you need now is a few hours of sleep." "Well, later then," she answered drowsily. "Gee, Min, it's been great to see you." She aroused herself long enough to answer this. "I observe that you seem to think so." "Because I talked a lot to Lottie! How could anyone escape? Oh, Mona—that isn't like you." She patted his hand as it lay on the wheel and his fingers caught her own. "You see," Steve explained naively, "I wanted old Towner to have the best." The car glided carefully out of the way of a taxicab, appearing suddenly from nowhere, and turned into East 67th street. It settled quietly a door or so away from the entrance to the Moran apartment. Steve walked with Mona to the entrance. She stood for a moment and looked at him gravely. "Don't worry about Bud," Steve whispered. "I'll take a hand in that. Forget it!" He tipped her face gently upward, his gloved fingers beneath the quaintly pointed chin. "Remember how I used to call you 'little pointy face'?" Mona remembered. "Bye. See you some more. I'll call you this afternoon at the office. Maybe you'll let me drive you home or something." "Maybe." Steve returned to the car, paused a moment lighting a cigaret and slipped beneath the wheel. Mona, watching, knew that he would wait until the three flights so that the creaking of her door and the starting of the motor car would not be simultaneous. She tried not to worry about Bud as she saw, gratefully, that he was asleep in his room. She reflected that Steve's interest in the matter would help her a lot. Back at the Halcyon Club, Buck Harkins was finishing a long talk with Chile. Saccarelli offered a diamond—Chile's Diamond of the first water, Chile. Blue as steel. Bigger than the Regent of Portugal. Bigger than the Star of the South. "A hundred twenty carats, Chile! What a stone!" "Where'd he get it?" "Came by it honestly—that's the funny part. He's offering it on the open market and we've got to get it!" Chile stood up, stretching his huge length with a spread-eagle motion that filled the room. "Now we're going to get it? How we're going to get rid of it, if we lay our hands on it? Ever think of that?" Buck Harkins swung his chair around and eyed Chile. "Say, for half a million I could get rid of the City Hall, wrapped up in tissue paper with a red ribbon on it." Chile returned his glance speculatively. "I believe you," he decided quietly. "Well, guess I'll be moving on." He reached the door. "Yeah?" "Saccarelli's crazy about the Kid's sister." "Young Moran?" "Young Moran. I see him dancing. He's almost in love with her. I couldn't accuse him of being entirely in love with anyone though—except the Empress of Peru!" Chile stared. "Empress? Going in for high life is he? The son of a gun!" Buck waved a hand explanatorily. "That's the name he gave the diamond, Chile. Empress of Peru. Peru ain't had no Empress, see? Well the trade ain't never had no diamond like this one. That's how I figure it." Chile nodded. "I see." "Well!" Buck turned briskly to his desk once more for a last minute accounting. He glanced about to add, "Sooner or later Steve will show the diamond to this girl of his. Women love diamonds. Savvy?" "I savvy." "Fine. Keep the Kid occupied with any phoney job you can think of any pay him 50 snacks a week. Toss in a present of some clothes. Supply him with theater tickets and introduce him to some good-looking dames. Sooner or later he's going to tell us where the little old Empress hides out. See?" "Well," Chile smiled broadly, "now that you mention it, Buck, I do see. A 50-50 split, Buck, eh?" "Fifty-fifty, Chile!" Buck nodded. "Like always." Outside the door Chile lighted a cigaret meditatively. "Like always. Yeah!" (To Be Continued)

Campus Radicals Sow Communism in Schools of China

Peiping.—(AP)—Educational authorities here view with concern the growth of communism among Chinese students. Almost every government university has its student "cell," it is said. The communists make a point of capturing key positions in student organizations. When the Japanese occupied Mukden a year ago, the student associations of several universities formed an anti-Japanese society, but in less than a month it was brought under communist control. Other familiar tactics of the radical students are to attend public meetings and heckle speakers who voice hostility to communist theories. To assist the authorities in handling the situation seven Chinese patriotic organizations here have banded into an anti-communist federation. They urge drastic action to root out the red menace in the schools.

Olen Outlines Relief Work at Joint Meeting

Manawa Lions, Common Council Hear Rehabilitation Program

Special to Post-Crescent
Manawa—W. A. Olen, president of the Four Wheel Drive Auto company of Clintonville, addressed the Lions club and members of the village council, Monday evening on the rehabilitation movement which is rapidly taking form. Mr. Olen is regional chairman for Waupaca and Shawano counties. He reports that projects under-taken so far in the two counties involve an expenditure of nearly $90,000, and the work is just getting under way. The prime object of the rehabilitation movement is to facilitate the movement of goods which will give employment to labor. The repair of rebuilding of any factory or other building is especially encouraged at this time. Also such movements which would provide a home market for the farmers' wood and other produce.

It is felt that this is the time in which to encourage work which will make a market for labor and materials. Now is an opportunity for leadership in practical cooperation, which will enable both farmers and city people to better prepare for the coming winter and meet the urgent needs for interest and taxes. According to Mr. Olen the time is here when we must realize that this is a creditors' depression as well as a debtors' depression. Both must realize that they must work together.

A case is told of a farmer not far from here who had a splendid herd of 40 registered cattle. Three years ago he was offered from $15,000 to $150 a head. He did not sell, and borrowed $4,000 on his cattle and other property. The holder of the loan foreclosed recently and at auction the entire herd brought only about $1,000.

This both the debtor and creditor were the losers.

Cities Cases

Another case is told of a working man who had a $5,000 life insurance policy. He lost his job, became hard up, surrendered his policy for a few hundred dollars, and paid up his debts. Within thirty days he took sick and died, leaving his wife and children without any protection. An investigation showed that he might have borrowed sufficient funds on the policy to have carried it for several years and thus kept the protection for his family.

So far three open meetings have been held at Waupaca, Shawano, and Clintonville. It is especially desirable in a rural community like this to direct the attention of everyone to making a home market for farm produce. If a farmer can sell he can buy, and if he can buy, the demand will be increased and more labor employed everywhere.

Hits Education For Shallowness

Inability to Think Independently Scored by The Rev. Mason

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—Decrying the blight of shallowness, in education and the inability to think independently, and pleading for the power in scholars and citizens to soar above dilettantism which the average person succeeds in gaining through education, made up the theme of the address by the Rev. William Mason, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, before the Parents-Teachers association Thursday night.

Education he said, is not really a utilitarian affair as so many parents seem to think. They strive to educate their children, he said, with the idea that by providing an education they increase the financial values of the child. In this connection, the speaker pointed out the names of Ford and Edison. On the other hand are the names of great thinkers, educators and writers which, because they have contributed nothing but deep thinking to the world, are little known.

True education, the speaker said, should be such that to found a real research should be its possessor. Intellectual appreciation, true education should grow in the very joy of achievement and should build character. One who is truly educated should have that within him to enjoy his own thoughts and the works of great men and women, even were he isolated from all human contact.

Learning should, the speaker continued, develop the power of discrimination. This stated Mr. Mason, is known as acumen, the power to analyze a situation. The power of expansion also is a desirable thing since it enables the scholar to see things as a whole. Schools, it was pointed out, should strive to inculcate more of the moral virtues into the minds of students. The moral virtues of sympathy and tolerance it was said are as necessary in life as any branch of study.
